Woman, 25, Is Killed At Esopus

A 25-year-old mother was accidentally electrocuted sometime Monday evening in her home in Esopus, state police reported.

The body of Mrs. Isabelle Severud was found about 2 a. m. today lying across the couch in her living room.

Discovery was made by her husband, Christopher Severud, when he returned home from work on the night shift at IBM in Poughkeepsie, troopers said.

Dr. Louis Mancinelli, who pronounced Mrs. Severud dead, estimated she had been dead about six hours, or since about 7 p. m. Monday, he told troopers.

Tragedy Reconstructed

State police of Highland, through investigation, concluded that Mrs. Severud, who was clad in shorts, had been attempting to switch a floor lamp and that her legs contacted a nearby radiator, which provided the ground for the current.

The young woman had burns on the palms of her hands and on her legs, the troopers said.

A verdict of accidental death by electrocution has been issued by Coroner Ernest A. Kelly of Kingston.

Finds Home Dark

The husband told troopers he arrived home from work about 1:30 a. m. today to find the home dark and the doors locked. Unable to arouse anybody, Severud raised a window and entered the house, where he discovered his wife lying across the coach and their one-year-old boy, Chris-

Completion Seen by Autumn, Is Tallamy Aide Advice

Route 28 and the New York State Thruway will be joined next year under plans submitted to Albany last week for approval.

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk was informed of this today through a letter from the office of B. D. Tallamy, chairman of the New York State Thruway Authority.

The mayor, stressing the narrowness of the Esopus creek bridge and the Washington avenue viaduct, wrote Tallamy last week suggesting that plans for joining the mountain route and the super highway be delayed until a section of the thruway south of Route 28 is completed.

Tallamy forwarded the letter to C. H. Lang, deputy chief engineer of the authority who wrote: "It can be expected that this project will be placed under contract within the next two months—which means that in the normal course of construction procedure this section will not be open to traffic until its completion in the autumn of 1953."

Are Under Pressure

Lang said state engineers are "proceeding under great pressure" so that all thruway plans will be completed by the spring of 1953, and the route itself from Buffalo to New York completed by the fall of 1954.

Contracts for sections south of Route 28 will be only a few months behind that which is expected to be let this summer covering the strip from Sawkill to the mountain route, "and therefore should not inconvenience the traffic of the citizens of Kingston for very long," the engineer said.

If the thruway is to be completed on schedule, Lang said, "we must place sections under contract as the plans are finished." It is planned now to make use of two full construction seasons, 1953 and 1954 so that the super highway may be completed by the end of the latter season, he stressed.

9W Plan Abandoned

State engineers originally planned to make a temporary connection with Route 9W a short distance north of the city, but because of technical difficulties, this plan was abandoned in favor of the one which will now bring the thruway through to Route 28 to complete the Saugerties-Kingston section.

The road is mapped to join Route 28 at a point a few hundred feet above the intersection of the Sawkill road, and the interchange to be built there will absorb considerable acreage of the truck garden farms in the area.

Intricate Construction

The super highway south of the city will span the Esopus creek, two railroads, Route 209 and the Lucas Turnpike as it crosses the southern and western end of the city and will entail intricate construction work. The Kingston-Saugerties section is now completed to a point a short distance southeast of Sawkill.

A. R. Erskine, district thruway authority engineer said last week that plans to connect the highway with Route 28 had been submitted to Albany for approval and he expected that the state would soon advertise for bids so that a contract might be let this coming fall. It is expected that work will start in the right-of-way soon after a contract is let.

New Atom Plant Is Set for Ohio

More Than Million to Be Spent on Building to Make Uranium-235

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission will build a new $1,200,000,000 plant in southern Ohio, Rep. Elston (R-Ohio) said today. The plant will produce uranium-235, a key atomic substance.

An aide to Elston told a reporter the new gaseous diffusion plant will be located on a 6,500-acre tract in a sparsely-settled area of Pike county, about 18 or 20 miles north of Portsmouth. It had been said previously that a new plant would be located somewhere in the Ohio valley.

50 Families to Move

The plant site will lie between Piketon and Wakefield on the Scioto river. Exact boundaries will be determined after detailed engineering surveys, the commission advised Elston.

Some 50 families will be relocated.

The new plant is considered important in the AEC's big expansion program for which Congress voted funds in the closing days of its recent session.

Eisenhower Says Peace Based Upon 'Understanding'

Stevenson Might Ask HST to Breeze

Labor Day Speech Conflict May Be Settled at Conference

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—President Truman may be asked today to play a muted second fiddle to Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois in the Democratic campaign for the presidency.

Stevenson's scheduled arrival here (10:45 a. m., EST) for White House conferences with the President and a cabinet luncheon is expected to bring a decision in the backstage controversy over Truman's role in the campaign.

Unless all the outward signs fail, the Illinois governor probably will tell Truman he will be glad to have his help. But Stevenson is expected to make it plain he wants no presidential whistle-stop tours overshadowing his own efforts as the nominee to get his views across to the people.

May Settle Issue

One issue that may be settled is a conflict in Labor Day speaking plans for the two.

William Flannigan, Stevenson's press secretary, disclosed yesterday in Springfield, Ill., that the nominee was considering kicking off his campaign with a Sept. 1 speech in Detroit.

Flannigan said the Stevenson camp learned that Truman tentatively had arranged to speak in Milwaukee the same day. He said the mixup occurred because of lack of knowledge in Springfield of Truman's plans.

Democratic leaders apparently agree that in any such conflict the

Nominee to Touch Upon Topic in Every Speech of Campaign

Denver, Aug. 12 (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower says "the outlook is not too bright" for a durable world peace unless Americans gain a thorough understanding of the complex problems involved.

The Republican presidential nominee told a news conference late yesterday he'll touch on the subject in every campaign speech.

"The great subject of peace and how to obtain it," the general declared, "overshadows all other subjects because it affects all others."

But efforts of newsmen to draw out details of Eisenhower's campaign plans got nowhere. The GOP standard bearer did say he expects to speak in Philadelphia—but that no date has been set. He repeated he will campaign in traditionally Democratic Dixie. And, in response to a question, he said no speech yet had been scheduled for Labor Day.

May Complete Plans

Eisenhower indicated, however, that plans may be completed after a current round of conferences.

Yesterday he met with southern backers and with Republican farm leaders in Congress. Last night, Arthur E. Summerfield, national GOP chairman, flew in with what aides said was a proposed itinerary for the next 30 days.

Harold Stassen, who campaigned unsuccessfully for the Republican nomination, is scheduled to arrive tonight and to have lunch tomorrow with Eisenhower.

Japanese Report National Treasure Lost; Press Caustic

Account Says Much Given to Occupation Rulers, Admits Possible Carelessness

Tokyo, Aug. 12 (AP)—A Japanese Parliament committee today said it has confirmed that a large quantity of Japanese national treasure is missing and that receipts by occupation officials for some of it are "extremely unclear and figures do not jibe."

The report said also that much of the treasure may have disappeared during World War 2 while the property was still in Japanese hands.

"We have confirmed the loss of a considerable large quantity of precious metals and diamonds, including the Empress Nagako's crown made of gold and platinum and studded with five large diamonds," the committee said.

The Empress gave the crown to the government during the war as a patriotic example.

Most of the treasure was bought by the government for war use or contributed by citizens.

Given to Occupation

The committee said the Central Materials Utilization Association which purchased precious jewels and metals of Japan during the war reported it gave the occupation the following:

"10,999.37 carats in diamonds.

"28,707.49 kan (240,000 pounds avoirdupois) of platinum.

"15 ilograms (33 pounds) of platinum from the national mint.

"532,145 kilograms (1,100 pounds) of gold and 226,947,968 kilograms (500,000 pounds) of silver.

"Receipts by the occupation for these items are extremely unclear and figures do not jibe. The receipts are available at the committee.

Ugliness by Indirection

The veiled reference to the occupation had special significance since it came at the end of the long report—80 pages in Japanese. It is customary for the main point

Medico Geography Told to International Unit at Washington

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—The prevalence of cancer varies in different countries and under different conditions, the 17th International Geographical Congress was told today.

For example, the delegates were told, cancer of the lung does not exist in Iceland or Korea; stomach cancer is not as common in England as on the continent of Europe; primary cancer of the liver is relatively more common in Africa, Indochina, India, Malaya, Indonesia and the Philippine Islands than elsewhere in the world; and cancer of the base of the tongue is relatively frequent in certain communities in India.

Highlight of Report

The cancer facts were a highlight of the first report of the "Commission on Medical Geography" of the International Geographical Union—a commission which is making a worldwide systematic study of the possible relationships between the distribution of diseases and the environments in which they develop.

Notification on the approval of this was given August 4, by Senator Wicks' Kingston office to John D. Schoonmaker, Jr., president of Kingston Hospital.

Allocation of this money was made by the New York State Hospital Planning Commission. Kingston Hospital authorities now must await approval by the United States Commissioner of Public Health for the project of expansion planned by the local hospital board.

Ulster Has Two More Polio Cases

Two more cases were reported by the Ulster County Health Department today, bringing the yearly total reported in the county to 17.

One patient, a woman, 22 is a resident of New York city and has been transferred to a hospital there for treatment. The other, a woman, 40, is a county resident who is receiving treatment at home, the health department said.

Of the total number of cases reported in the county this year, 15 are residents and two non-residents.

Italian Attorney Says Lo Dolce Case Diplomatic Matter

Government Counsel Does Not Elaborate on Remark, Favors Habeas Corpus

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 12 (AP)—An Italian government attorney says the case of Carl G. Lo Dolce, accused in Italy of the wartime slaying of a cloak and dagger major, now becomes "a matter of diplomacy."

Federal Judge John Knight yesterday refused to order Lo Dolce extradited to Italy and said the denial was not subject to review by higher court.

Lo Dolce, a 30-year-old former army sergeant from Rochester, was accused of shooting Maj. William V. Holohan during a secret OSS mission behind German lines in Italy in 1944.

Judge Knight held that the extradition treaty of 1868 was not effective because the place where the crime was committed was occupied by German armies. He noted that at the time, an armistice had been reached with Italy, but not a peace treaty.

Matter of Diplomacy

Francis Dibartolo, attorney for the Italian government here, said in a statement last night that "this now becomes a matter of diplomacy."

Dibartolo did not elaborate on what part diplomacy could play, but added:

"The court's decision robs Carl Lo Dolce of the only means he had to extenuate or in any way diminish the impact of the atrocious crimes with which he was charged. I believe it would have been more opportune had higher courts ruled on the issue through a writ of habeas corpus."

Earlier, Dibartolo had told reporters he did not believe the Italian government would want to pursue the case further.

In Washington, the Italian embassy said it was referring the decision to the Italian Department of Justice at Rome.

Also accused in the slaying was former Lt. Aldo Icardi, 31, of Pittsburgh, a third OSS man on the mission. Italy has taken no

Bruhn Gets Show Cause From Court

County Man's Counsel Would Appeal Ulster Court Decision About 'New Evidence'

May Get Stay

Dewey Might Postpone Aug. 18 Hearing to Granting Delay

Defense counsel in the Edward H. Kelly murder case have taken steps to obtain permission to reargue the appeal of Kelly's conviction.

District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn was served Monday afternoon with an order signed by Chief Justice John T. Loughran of the Court of Appeals to "show cause why leave should not be granted to re-argue the appeal."

The show cause order is returnable before the Court of Appeals—the state's highest court—in Albany on October 6.

Sentenced to Die

Kelly has been sentenced to die in the electric chair sometime the week of August 25, for the murder of Mrs. Eloise McHugh in this city more than two years ago. The only remaining way for Kelly to be given a "stay" or delay in execution of the sentence is for one to be granted by Governor Thomas E. Dewey. Thus, unless Gov. Dewey grants the stay, the show cause order returnable October 6 will become academic.

Dewey May Grant Stay

A hearing before Gov. Dewey for clemency has already been granted for Monday, Aug. 18. Although that date officially still stands, it was indicated today that the hearing "probably" will be postponed. In that case, a stay presumably will be granted by the governor.

The show cause order issued Monday by the Court of Appeals is to all practical purposes a request for permission to appeal County Judge John M. Cashin's decision of last Friday in which he denied a motion brought by Attorney Whitman Knapp of New York for a re-trial of Kelly on the basis of "new evidence" discovered since the last trial.

Actually, the courts have held that such a motion for re-trial is not appealable. They have also held, however, that the record of the hearing on the motion for re-trial may be used in re-arguing the appeal.

Convicted Twice

Kelly was twice convicted of murder in the first degree by Ulster county juries. The first conviction was reversed by the Court of Appeals and a new trial ordered. The second conviction was unanimously affirmed by the Court of Appeals. It is this second appeal—in which the highest court affirmed Kelly's conviction — that Defense Attorney Knapp is seeking permission to re-argue.

Naguib Agrees Land Holding In Egypt Shall Be 'Limited'

Cairo, Aug. 12 (AP)—A principle of "limited land ownership" for Egypt has been agreed upon, Egypt's strong man, Maj. Gen. Mohammed Naguib, told reporters today.

A description of the land reform agreement was not immediately available from official sources, but the newspaper Al Misri, organ of the Wafdist party, said the law under consideration would limit ownership of land to 200 acres per person.

All holdings over 200 acres would be expropriated and the owners would be recompensed in state bonds maturing over a period of 30 years and paying 3.25 per cent interest. The price would be based on 1937-39 land values.

Persons acquiring land under the reform would pay for it over a term of 30 years. Anyone violating conditions of the law would face five years imprisonment, without the right of appeal.

The demand for a land reform which would benefit the landless fellaheen (peasants) has been among the main topics of discussion by Gen. Naguib and his advisers since his army coup ousted King Farouk from the throne and installed Aly Maher as premier.

Also under discussion by the cabinet last night were army demands for other economic reforms and the possibility of reim-

Plentiful Food Supplies Are Assured, U. S. Declares

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—Plentiful supplies of food appear to be in store during the year ahead despite last month's crop damaging drouth in the south and northeast.

In its latest measurement of production prospects, the Agriculture Department predicted late yesterday that the combined volume of all crops this year will be larger than in any year except 1948 and 1949.

Although the indicated output is larger than last year, it will be less evenly distributed because of heavy losses—particularly in feed supplies for meat and dairy animals—in southern states.

The latter area will need to ship in more feed than usual if it is to avert a serious setback in the production of meat, dairy and poultry products in a land once ruled by cotton.

Elsewhere, there appears to be sufficient corn, oats, hay and other feed materials to foster a further expansion in production of beef, pork, milk, eggs and poultry.

The nation is harvesting its second largest wheat crop of record— a crop far in excess of expected needs.

Only in the case of potatoes and sweet potatoes are supplies likely to become tight before new crops are harvested in 1953.

Meanwhile, the department moved to provide financial aid to more financially-distressed farm-

Through the personal endeavors of Senator Arthur H. Wicks, State Senate Majority Leader, Kingston Hospital will benefit to the extent of $250,000 of Hill-Burton Funds for its building program, the Freeman was told today.

Notification on the approval of this was given August 4, by Senator Wicks' Kingston office to John D. Schoonmaker, Jr., president of Kingston Hospital.

Allocation of this money was made by the New York State Hospital Planning Commission. Kingston Hospital authorities now must await approval by the United States Commissioner of Public Health for the project of expansion planned by the local hospital board.

Funds were made available at Washington on a strict rule

Of the total number of cases reported in the county this year, 15 are residents and two non-residents.

Italian Attorney Says Lo Dolce Case Diplomatic Matter

Government Counsel Does Not Elaborate on Remark, Favors Habeas Corpus

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 12 (AP)—An Italian government attorney says the case of Carl G. Lo Dolce, accused in Italy of the wartime slaying of a cloak and dagger major, now becomes "a matter of diplomacy."

Federal Judge John Knight yesterday refused to order Lo Dolce extradited to Italy and said the denial was not subject to review by higher court.

Lo Dolce, a 30-year-old former army sergeant from Rochester, was accused of shooting Maj. William V. Holohan during a secret OSS mission behind German lines in Italy in 1944.

Judge Knight held that the extradition treaty of 1868 was not effective because the place where the crime was committed was occupied by German armies. He noted that at the time, an armistice had been reached with Italy, but not a peace treaty.

Matter of Diplomacy

Francis Dibartolo, attorney for the Italian government here, said in a statement last night that "this now becomes a matter of diplomacy."

Dibartolo did not elaborate on what part diplomacy could play, but added:

"The court's decision robs Carl Lo Dolce of the only means he had to extenuate or in any way diminish the impact of the atrocious crimes with which he was charged. I believe it would have been more opportune had higher courts ruled on the issue through a writ of habeas corpus."

Earlier, Dibartolo had told reporters he did not believe the Italian government would want to pursue the case further.

In Washington, the Italian embassy said it was referring the decision to the Italian Department of Justice at Rome.

Also accused in the slaying was former Lt. Aldo Icardi, 31, of Pittsburgh, a third OSS man on the mission. Italy has taken no

Bruhn Gets Show Cause From Court

May Get Stay

Dewey Might Postpone Aug. 18 Hearing to Granting Delay

Defense counsel in the Edward H. Kelly murder case have taken steps to obtain permission to re-argue the appeal of Kelly's conviction.

District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn was served Monday afternoon with an order signed by Chief Justice John T. Loughran of the Court of Appeals to "show cause why leave should not be granted to re-argue the appeal."

The show cause order is returnable before the Court of Appeals—the state's highest court—in Albany on October 6.

Sentenced to Die

Kelly has been sentenced to die in the electric chair sometime the week of August 25, for the murder of Mrs. Eloise McHugh in this city more than two years ago. The only remaining way for Kelly to be given a "stay" or delay in execution of the sentence is for one to be granted by Governor Thomas E. Dewey. Thus, unless Gov. Dewey grants the stay, the show cause order returnable October 6 will become academic.

Dewey May Grant Stay

A hearing before Gev. Dewey for clemency has already been granted for Monday, Aug. 18. Although that date officially still stands, it was indicated today that the hearing "probably" will be postponed. In that case, a stay presumably will be granted by the governor.

The show cause order issued Monday by the Court of Appeals is to all practical purposes a request for permission to appeal County Judge John M. Cashin's decision of last Friday in which he denied a motion brought by Attorney Whitman Knapp of New York for a re-trial of Kelly on the basis of "new evidence" discovered since the last trial.

Actually, the courts have held that such a motion for re-trial is not appealable. They have also held, however, that the record of the hearing on the motion for re-trial may be used in re-arguing the appeal.

Convicted Twice

Kelly was twice convicted of murder in the first degree by Ulster county juries. The first conviction was reversed by the Court of Appeals and a new trial ordered. The second conviction was unanimously affirmed by the Court of Appeals. It is this second appeal—in which the highest court affirmed Kelly's conviction — that Defense Attorney Knapp is seeking permission to re-argue.

Amrum, Germany, Aug. 12 (AP)—A 66-year-old German was missing today in an attempt to swim the North Sea by stages. His route from Denmark to Germany stretched 125 miles.

Plentiful Food Supplies Are Assured, U. S. Declares

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—Plentiful supplies of food appear to be in store during the year ahead despite last month's crop damaging drouth in the south and northeast.

In its latest measurement of production prospects, the Agriculture Department predicted late yesterday that the combined volume of all crops this year will be larger than in any year except 1948 and 1949.

Although the indicated output is larger than last year, it will be less evenly distributed because of heavy losses—particularly in feed supplies for meat and dairy animals—in southern states.

The latter area will need to ship in more feed than usual if it is to avert a serious setback in the production of meat, dairy and poultry products in a land once ruled by cotton.

Elsewhere, there appears to be sufficient corn, oats, hay and other feed materials to foster a further expansion in production of beef, pork, milk, eggs and poultry.

The nation is harvesting its second largest wheat crop of record— a crop far in excess of expected needs.

Only in the case of potatoes and sweet potatoes are supplies likely to become tight before new crops are harvested in 1953.

Meanwhile, the department moved to provide financial aid to more financially-distressed farm-

New York Counts 132 Homicides in 6 Months of 1952

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—New York city had 132 homicides and 22,005 burglaries in the first six months of 1952, the police department reports.

The figures compare with 116 homicides and 14,961 burglaries in the comparable period of 1951.

Police figures showed yesterday that major crimes in every category increased sharply for the six-month period.

Commenting on the comparative figures, Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan said "no fair comparison can be made  because of the numerous revisions in the crime reporting system."

Reports Are Required

Police now are under orders to make official reports to headquarters on all complaints, many of which would have been skipped in the past.

The overall average of increases for all ten categories of major crimes was 37.4 per cent between the 1951 and 1952 six-month periods. A total of 55,304 felonies in the latter period compared with 40,248.

Reports for the 1952 and 1951 periods included:

Robbery	4,630	3,184
Manslaughter	199	148
Rape	507	451
Felonious Assault	4,017	3,599
Auto Grand Larceny	6,151	5,303
Other Gr'd Larc'ies	13,649	9,417
Narcotics	1,792	1,499

Misdemeanors (lesser crimes) dropped from 64,841 to 57,618 between the two periods.

Passenger Is Missing

Cape Girardeau, Mo., Aug. 12 (AP)—A Dixie Greyhound bus plowed into a flash flood near here early today and a torrent of water poured through it, throwing some of the 18 passengers into panic. An elderly Negro passenger was missing and presumed drowned. Bill Thompson, about 30, of Eulaula, Ala., was credited with saving three other passengers who were swept off their feet by the swift current after leaving the bus.

Carlsen Denies Accident

Rotterdam, The Netherlands, Aug. 12 (AP)—Capt. Kurt Carlsen denied today a police report from Germany that he was involved in a motorcycle accident. In an interview aboard his ship, the Flying Enterprise II, Carlsen said: "This is the second time that reports have circulated that I have been hurt in an accident. I wonder when publicity around me will stop."

Massell Is Taken To Newburgh by Police on Charge

Ivan Massell, 30, of 95 West Pierpont street, was arrested last night by Officers Kenneth Gaffney and William Norton on a warrant charging second degree grand larceny, after state police from the Newburgh area had sought him here.

The charge is an outgrowth of an alleged fraudulent check amounting to $150, police said.

A local police report at 8 p. m., said state police from Newburgh came here and assisted by Officers Gaffney and Norton attempted to locate Massell. The troopers returned after remaining here about an hour, the report said, and at 10:35 the two local officers arrested Massell at 95 West Pierpont street. He was turned over to the Newburgh state police at 11:45 p. m.

An examination was scheduled for Thursday at 7:30 p. m. when he was brought before Peace Justice Michael Brown, of Highland Falls, and pleaded not guilty. Bail was fixed at $200 and was supplied.

The state police said the arrest was made on complaint of Harry Greenberg, a storekeeper at Highland Falls.

The driver of the automobile, James H. Finnegan of Portsmouth, Va., was not held. Troopers said investigation disclosed that Winterson was crossing the highway to his mailbox, saw a southbound bus approach and turned back and "walked into" the rear of the northbound Finnegan sedan.

Attack Is Reported

Shenandoah Junction, W. Va., Aug. 12 (AP)—Mysterious shots and rocks hurtled out of the darkness as a Norfolk and Western passenger train pulled out of town last night. The engineer and a brakeman said rifle fire zinged by close to them. A rock broke a window in a passenger car but none of the 15 passengers were injured. Railroad officials knew of no reason for the attack.

Late Bulletins

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—A plain-clothes policeman died in Knickerbocker Hospital today, eight hours after he was shot while trying to stop an argument between two Negroes.

Patrolman James J. McGillion, 35, recovered consciousness long enough to tell fellow policemen that one of the Negroes drew a gun when he identified himself on a Harlem street. McGillion drew his own gun, but the assailant grabbed McGillion's revolver and fired.

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—Psychiatrists will recommend that Bayard Peakes, who confessed to killing a girl he'd never seen before on the Columbia University campus, should be committed to Matteawan State Hospital for the criminally insane at Beacon, N. Y.

This was learned from an authoritative source today following a closed lunacy hearing for the Boston madman which was held yesterday in the psychiatric division of Bellevue Hospital where Peakes is held.

The psychiatrists' report will state the 29-year-old confessed slayer is suffering from schizophrenia and had delusions of grandeur and persecution, the authoritative source said.

Marines Repulse 400 Chinese Reds

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 12 (AP)—U. S. Marines late today beat back 400 Chinese Reds charging Bunker Ridge, won early this morning by the leathernecks in sweeping attack on the Korea western front.

A U. S. Eighth Army staff officer said the Chinese suffered heavy casualties in their attack thrown against three sides of the entrenched marines.

Before the attack began, the marines estimated they had killed or wounded 553 Reds in the sector since bitter fighting erupted last Saturday.

A marine spokesman said the Chinese were thrown back but infiltration efforts continued at dusk. He said the Reds used artillery and mortars in support of the infantrymen.

Marines met the charge with air strikes, mortar, tank, artillery and small arms fire.

The battle site is a few miles east of the truce-talks town of Panmunjom.

Blasted Off Hill

Marine flame-throwing tanks and riflemen burned and blasted the Chinese off Siberia Hill just before midnight. The marines then swept on and captured Bunker Ridge dominating the sector.

For a time in midafternoon, a marine spokesman said, the entire Siberia area had been "quiet as a church mouse."

Since Saturday the fighting for the nob had been bitter. The Chinese made their first bid to win the hill Saturday. It exchanged hands six times before the marines finally secured it.

The navy announced that Communist shore batteries hit the American destroyers J. R. Pierce and Barton and the British frigate Mounts Bay in separate actions the past week. One American and one British sailor were killed and 14 sailors wounded. None of the warships was seriously damaged.

Area Is Hit

American B-29 superforts and B-26 light bombers last night hit the area north of Wonsan which had been razed earlier in the day by a 150-plane fighter-bomber attack.

The U. S. Far East air force said the superforts smashed a metal fabricating plant turning out ordnance supplies. The B-26s mopped up on a chemical plant and troop area.

U. S. Fifth Air Force warplanes hit the Chinese in the Siberia sector with rockets, bombs, and flaming gasolene prior to the marine assault.

Lashes at Czechs

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson lashed Communist Czechoslovakia today for keeping quiet about the reported escape of John Hvasta, 25-year-old former American sailor, from a Czech prison Camp. "If we were accorded the rights that every civilized country grants another," Acheson told a news conference, this government would have known of the escape months ago. The Secretary also attacked the Red Czech government for not permitting U. S. consuls to visit Hvasta in prison.

Murder Charge Is Placed Against Young Divorcee

Little Silver, N. J., Aug. 12 (AP)—A law student's persistent efforts to upset his young wife's divorce yesterday ended in his death and a murder charge against her.

Slender, 22-year-old Mrs. Ann Johnston was arraigned on a murder charge in the shooting of her former husband, Malcolm K. F. Johnston, 29.

The blonde defendant fainted while a plea of innocent was entered for her by Assistant Monmouth County Prosecutor George A. Gray, appearing before Magistrate William T. Wichmann. She was revived in a few minutes.

The young divorcee, mother of a two-year-old boy, was arrested and booked for murder shortly after Johnston reeled out of her apartment and fell dead down a flight of stairs with five slugs in his body.

Authorities said the murder weapon, a .38 caliber automatic, was "positively identified" by a roommate as one purchased by Mrs. Johnston last Saturday. Mrs. Johnston's attorney, Ralph Fusco, said she had a permit to carry the gun.

Tried to Upset Divorce

According to police, Johnston, a third year law student at Temple University, tried time and time again for the past few years to upset his ex-wife's Florida divorce. A copy of a statute on invalidating divorce decrees was found in his pocket.

Gray said Mrs. Betty Ivester, who shared the flat with Mrs. Johnston and her son, told him Mrs. Johnston bought the murder weapon in a Red Bank store last Saturday.

Later Fusco told newsmen Mrs. Johnston was granted a permit to carry a pistol because of her ex-husband's constant threats. He said Jonhston hounded her constantly about the divorce and objected to her dating other men after the decree became final. The divorce, Fusco added, was obtained by Mrs. Johnston in Florida on grounds of extreme mental cruelty.

Man Is Killed Eight Are Hurt Near Wurtsboro

Wurtsboro, Aug. 12 (AP)—One man was killed and eight persons injured when two autos collided near here last night.

Archie Goldberg, 37, of (65 Park Terrace East) Manhattan, driver of one of the cars was killed.

The other car was driven by Rabbi Seymour Weissman, 35, of Brooklyn, state police said. He was not injured.

The Goldberg car caught fire after the crash, and passing motorists pulled out the occupants and extinguished the flames.

No charge was lodged against Weissman.

Four persons in Goldberg's car were injured, two of them seriously. They were Goldberg's widow, Claire, 35, who received lacerations of the legs, and Mrs. Pearl Feldman, 34, of Brooklyn, who received critical injuries. Both were taken to Hamilton Avenue Hospital, Monticello.

Weissman's wife, a son, a nephew and a niece all received minor injuries.

Say Her Testimony To Implicate Many

Hudson, Aug. 12 (AP)—The state-ordered grand jury investigation of crime and possible "protection" payoffs in Columbia county has "entered a new phase," Chief Assistant Counsel Thomas Mason said today. He did not elaborate.

The special grand jury has been investigating the numbers racket's dice games and possible political corruption.

Mrs. Vera Faith, also known as Veronica Werner, appeared before the grand jury for two hours this morning.

She was convicted in June, 1950, of operating a house of prostitution here.

Burton Sherman, an assistant special prosecutor, said last May he believed Miss Werner "has testimony that will implicate many political figures, members of the police force and former members of the police force in the city of Hudson.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—Light selling, especially in the railroads, sent the stock market down today.

Also hit were selected oils with some of them down sharply on a few sales.

Losses ran from fractions to between 1 and 3 points with a few higher priced issues dropping more than that.

The pace of trading was a little better than yesterday's light 1,160,000 shares.

Railroads, which have been well ahead of the market as a whole in recent sessions, were down virtually all around. Yesterday many carriers were able to withstand selling.

Oil issues faced several bearish factors. For one thing, it has been a little more than six months since buyers were grabbing all the oil shares they could get at rising prices. Sales now, as a consequence, can be made at a profit taxable at the capital gains rate.

Expert Views 'Average Child' As 'Scientific Abstraction'

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

The child guidance books tell us it is harmful to compare one child's achievements or qualities with another's.

Mrs. A. has read this advice so many times that she has taken great care not to reproach Joe for his failing mark in this past term's arithmetic. But while she doesn't reproach him about his older sister's good mark, she is, if the truth must be told, pretty upset.

Though she has gagged her tongue, she has been unable to gag her fear that she has produced an inadequate child who may become a liability and a source of embarrassment to his family.

Her fear expresses itself in a certain coldness toward Joe, a certain increase of emotional endearments toward his sister. When she tries to defend Joe to his father, she keeps nervously reminding Mr. A. of what a clever daughter she has given him.

This is what happens when we take other people's advice about how to treat children without having a structure of our own conviction behind our treatment.

For Mrs. A., I want to quote a most reassuring comment of Dr. Katherine M. Wolf, assistant professor at Yale University Child Study Center. It appears in a recent issue of "Child Study," a publication of the Child Study Association of America.

Writes this eminent authority: "Work in child psychology - - - succeeded in showing certain laws of development - - - through which any healthy human being has to pass. We should not forget, however, that these rules represent a frame of reference rather than specific recipes for a specific case. They are based on the study of the 'average child.' In our clinical practice, the 'average child' does not exist."

Then she gives us the clincher. She calls this "average child" a scientific abstraction."

Now what does Mrs. A. think of that? If she thinks as well of it as I do, she'll stop worrying over Joe.

I feel great personal gratitude to Dr. Wolf for suggesting that children grow unevenly, have a range of capacity as infinite as the designs of snow crystals, and cannot possibly be judged by what the next youngster does when he does it.

We might as well make up our minds right now. So long as we are going to react to every failure of a child in sports, lessons, social success, obedience or even the habit of thumb sucking by consulting charts of what the "average child" should do at every given moment of his given age, we are going to be as miserable as Mrs. A.

We deserve to be miserable too. It's what we get for trying to substitute a "scientific abstraction" for a living human being.

Once there was a Greek tyrant named Procrustus, The Stretcher. He had an iron bedstead on which he used to bind all wayfarers who fell into his hands. If they were shorter than the bed, he stretched their legs to make them fit it. If they were longer, he lopped the legs off.

The hero Theseus put an end to him, just as should have long since put an end to our attempts to stretch or lop off those differences in boys and girls which do not fit the iron model of the "average child."

Howe Gets Clerk Post for County

The appointment of Raymond Howe, Sr., of Port Ewen as deputy clerk of the Board of Supervisors was announced today by Robert A. Snyder, clerk of the board.

Howe succeeds William W. Taylor of 249 Washington avenue, who retired from the position effective August 1.

Howe is a former supervisor, having served the Town of Esopus in the board for eight years. In 1936 he succeeded Roscoe V. Elsworth, now a supreme court judge, and was followed in 1944 by John T. Groves, present county treasurer.

Taylor had been deputy clerk for more than 10 years. Formerly account clerk for G. W. Van Slyke and Horton Cigar Manufacturers, Taylor was named as acting deputy clerk when Elliott Rogers of Kingston entered the armed forces early in World War 2. At that time, James A. Simpson of Phoenicia was clerk of the board.

Howe, who formerly conducted an office equipment business under his own name at 6 Broadway, for a short time prior to his appointment to his present position was employed by the Ulster County Welfare Department.

The office of the clerk of the Board of Supervisors is in the court house on Wall street, Kingston.

Anti-Red Bill Passes

New Delhi, India, Aug. 12 (AP)—With the echo of a Communist call to violence ringing through the hall, the Indian Parliament's Upper House passed today the preventive detention bill aimed at curbing the Reds. P. P. Sundarayya, leader of the Communist membership in both houses of Parliament, threatened that the Communist party would "shoot landlords, capitalists and blackmarketers" if it came to power. "In one week we would bring them all in before the people and if necessary shoot them," the Communist leader declared. "If the people want it, the people have the right to do it."

Senator's Report

of supervision for allocation by states, free of any federal compulsion or influence.

Kingston Hospital made application some time ago for this grant. When nothing was heard regarding what action the state commission planned, Senator Wicks made a personal appeal on behalf of the local institution to members of the planning board. The allocation notice received by Senator Wicks August 4 was the result, his office informed The Freeman today.

Japanese Report

in a Japanese document to come at the end.

Veiled wording also was typical of a Japanese government report. In these, the uglier the charge the more indirect the wording.

The committee said national treasures during the war were badly supervised and carelessly recorded and that theft would have been "quite easy."

The committee concluded:

"This committee is going to determine whether there was any misconduct. x x x"

The committee said a point still to be clarified is "how this affair stands in international law."

No Estimate of Treasure

The report gave no estimate of the treasure it said is missing.

Japanese press comment was caustic and recalled the case of Col. Edward J. Murray, former U. S. custodian of the Bank of Japan, convicted in 1949 of taking nearly $85,000 (wholesale value) in diamonds from the bank's vaults. He contended they were a gift. Murray was sentenced to 10 years but this was cut to five and he was paroled.

Last week the provincial government at Sendai, in northern Japan, reported to the committee that two U. S. officers took away $2,800,000 worth of platinum and diamonds in 1945 and 1947, leaving receipts, one written on a piece of scrap paper.

The committee in June began trying to locate former Japanese army and navy assets as well as precious metals and jewels sold or given the government during World War 2. The crown, worn by the empress on state occasions before the war, was one of the donated items.

New York Counts 132 Homicides in 6 Months of 1952

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—New York city had 132 homicides and 22,005 burglaries in the first six months of 1952, the police department reports.

The figures compare with 116 homicides and 14,961 burglaries in the comparable period of 1951.

Police figures showed yesterday that major crimes in every category increased sharply for the six-month period.

Commenting on the comparative figures, Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan said "no fair comparison can be made  because of the numerous revisions in the crime reporting system."

Reports Are Required

Police now are under orders to make official reports to headquarters on all complaints, many of which would have been skipped in the past.

The overall average of increases for all ten categories of major crimes was 37.4 per cent between the 1951 and 1952 six-month periods. A total of 55,304 felonies in the latter period compared with 40,248.

Reports for the 1952 and 1951 periods included:

Robbery	4,630	3,184
Manslaughter	199	148
Rape	507	451
Felonious Assault	4,017	3,599
Auto Grand Larceny	6,151	5,303
Other Gr'd Lar'cies	13,649	9,417
Narcotics	1,792	1,499

Misdemeanors (lesser crimes) dropped from 64,841 to 57,618 between the two periods.

Rotterdam, The Netherlands, Aug. 12 (AP)—Capt. Kurt Carlsen denied today a police report from Germany that he was involved in a motorcycle accident. In an interview aboard his ship, the Flying Enterprise II, Carlsen said: "This is the second time that reports have circulated that I have been hurt in an accident. Massell Is Taken To Newburgh by Police on Charge

Ivan Massell, 30, of 95 West Pierpont street, was arrested last night by Officers Kenneth Gaffney and William Norton on a warrant charging second degree grand larceny, after state police from the Newburgh area had sought him here.

The charge is an outgrowth of an alleged fraudulent check amounting to $150, police said.

A local police report at 8 p. m., said state police from Newburgh came here and assisted by Officers Gaffney and Norton attempted to locate Massell. The troopers returned after remaining here about an hour, the report said, and at 10:35 the two local officers arrested Massell at 95 West Pierpont street. Marines Repulse 400 Chinese Reds

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 12 (AP)—U. S. Marines late today beat back 400 Chinese Reds charging Bunker Ridge, won early this morning by the leathernecks in sweeping attack on the Korea western front.

A U. S. Eighth Army staff officer said the Chinese suffered heavy casualties in their attack thrown against three sides of the entrenched marines.

Before the attack began, the marines estimated they had killed or wounded 553 Reds in the sector since bitter fighting erupted last Saturday.

A marine spokesman said the Chinese were thrown back but infiltration efforts continued at dusk. He said the Reds used artillery and mortars in support of the infantrymen.

Marines met the charge with air strikes, mortar, tank, artillery and small arms fire.

The battle site is a few miles east of the truce-talks town of Panmunjom.

Blasted Off Hill

Marine flame-throwing tanks and riflemen burned and blasted the Chinese off Siberia Hill just before midnight. The marines then swept on and captured Bunker Ridge dominating the sector.

For a time in midafternoon, a marine spokesman said, the entire Siberia area had been "quiet as a church mouse."

Since Saturday the fighting for the nob had been bitter. The Chinese made their first bid to win the hill Saturday. It exchanged hands six times before the marines finally secured it.

The navy announced that Communist shore batteries hit the American destroyers J. R. Pierce and Barton and the British frigate Mounts Bay in separate actions the past week. One American and one British sailor were killed and 14 sailors wounded. None of the warships was seriously damaged.

Area Is Hit

The U. S. Far East air force said the superforts smashed a metal fabricating plant turning out ordnance supplies. The B-26s mopped up on a chemical plant and troop area.

U. S. Fifth Air Force warplanes hit the Chinese in the Siberia sector with rockets, bombs, and flaming gasolene prior to the marine assault.

The Secretary also attacked the Red Czech government for not permitting U. S. consuls to visit Hvasta in prison.

Murder Charge Is Placed Against Young Divorcee

Little Silver, N. J., Aug 12 (AP)—A law student's persistent efforts to upset his young wife's divorce yesterday ended in his death and a murder charge against her.

Slender, 22-year-old Mrs. Ann Johnston was arraigned on a murder charge in the shooting of her former husband, Malcolm K. F. Johnston, 29.

The blonde defendant fainted while a plea of innocent was entered for her by Assistant Monmouth County Prosecutor George A. Gray, appearing before Magistrate William T. Wichmann. She was revived in a few minutes.

The young divorcee, mother of a two-year-old boy, was arrested and booked for murder shortly after Johnston reeled out of her apartment and fell dead down a flight of stairs with five slugs in his body.

Authorities said the murder weapon, a .38 caliber automatic, was "positively identified" by a roommate as one purchased by Mrs. Johnston last Saturday. Mrs. Johnston's attorney, Ralph Fusco, said she had a permit to carry the gun.

Tried to Upset Divorce

According to police, Johnston, a third year law student at Temple University, tried time and time again for the past few years to upset his ex-wife's Florida divorce. A copy of a statute on invalidating divorce decrees was found in his pocket.

Gray said Mrs. Betty Ivester, who shared the flat with Mrs. Johnston and her son, told him Mrs. Johnston bought the murder weapon in a Red Bank store last Saturday.

Later Fusco told newsmen Mrs. Johnston was granted a permit to carry a pistol because of her ex-husband's constant threats. He said Jonhston hounded her constantly about the divorce and objected to her dating other men after the decree became final. The divorce, Fusco added, was obtained by Mrs. Johnston in Florida on grounds of extreme mental cruelty.

The Goldberg car caught fire after the crash, and passing motorists pulled out the occupants and extinguished the flames.

No charge was lodged against Weissman.

Four persons in Goldberg's car were injured, two of them seriously. They were Goldberg's widow, Claire, 35, who received lacerations of the legs, and Mrs. Pearl Feldman, 34, of Brooklyn, who received critical injuries. Both were taken to Hamilton Avenue Hospital, Monticello.

Weissman's wife, a son, a nephew and a niece all received minor injuries.

Say Her Testimony To Implicate Many

Hudson, Aug. 12 (AP)—The state-ordered grand jury investigation of crime and possible "protection" payoffs in Columbia county has "entered a new phase," Chief Assistant Counsel Thomas Mason said today. He did not elaborate.

The special grand jury has been investigating the numbers racket's dice games and possible political corruption.

Mrs. Vera Faith, also known as Veronica Werner, appeared before the grand jury for two hours this morning.

She was convicted in June, 1950, of operating a house of prostitution here.

Burton Sherman, an assistant special prosecutor, said last May he believed Miss Werner "has testimony that will implicate many political figures, members of the police force and former members of the police force in the city of Hudson.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—Light selling, especially in the railroads, sent the stock market down today.

Also hit were selected oils with some of them down sharply on a few sales.

Losses ran from fractions to between 1 and 3 points with a few higher priced issues dropping more than that.

The pace of trading was a little better than yesterday's light 1,160,000 shares.

Railroads, which have been well ahead of the market as a whole in recent sessions, were down virtually all around. Yesterday many carriers were able to withstand selling.

Oil issues faced several bearish factors. For one thing, it has been a little more than six months since buyers were grabbing all the oil shares they could get at rising prices. Sales now, as a consequence, can be made at a profit taxable at the capital gains rate.

The Mature Parent

Expert Views 'Average Child' As 'Scientific Abstraction'

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

The child guidance books tell us it is harmful to compare one child's achievements or qualities with another's.

Mrs. A. has read this advice so many times that she has taken great care not to reproach Joe for his failing mark in this past term's arithmetic. But while she doesn't reproach him about his older sister's good mark, she is, if the truth must be told, pretty upset.

Though she has gagged her tongue, she has been unable to gag her fear that she has produced an inadequate child who may become a liability and a source of embarrassment to his family.

Her fear expresses itself in a certain coldness toward Joe, a certain increase of emotional endearments toward his sister. When she tries to defend Joe to his father, she keeps nervously reminding Mr. A. of what a clever daughter she has given him.

This is what happens when we take other people's advice about how to treat children without having a structure of our own conviction behind our treatment.

For Mrs. A., I want to quote a most reassuring comment of Dr. Katherine M. Wolf, assistant professor at Yale University Child Study Center. It appears in a recent issue of "Child Study," a publication of the Child Study Association of America.

Writes this eminent authority: "Work in child psychology - - - succeeded in showing certain laws of development - - - through which any healthy human being has to pass. We should not forget, however, that these rules represent a frame of reference rather than specific recipes for a specific case. They are based on the study of the 'average child.' In our clinical practice, the 'average child' does not exist."

Then she gives us the clincher. She calls this "average child" a scientific abstraction."

Now what does Mrs. A. think of that? If she thinks as well of it as I do, she'll stop worrying over Joe.

I feel great personal gratitude to Dr. Wolf for suggesting that children grow unevenly, have a range of capacity as infinite as the designs of snow crystals, and cannot possibly be judged by what the next youngster does when he does it.

We might as well make up our minds right now. So long as we are going to react to every failure of a child in sports, lessons, social success, obedience or even the habit of thumb sucking by consulting charts of what the "average child" should do at every given moment of his given age, we are going to be as miserable as Mrs. A.

We deserve to be miserable too. It's what we get for trying to substitute a "scientific abstraction" for a living human being.

Once there was a Greek tyrant named Procrustus, The Stretcher. He had an iron bedstead on which he used to bind all wayfarers who fell into his hands. If they were shorter than the bed, he stretched their legs to make them fit it. If they were longer, he lopped the legs off.

The hero Theseus put an end to him, just as should have long since put an end to our attempts to stretch or lop off those differences in boys and girls which do not fit the iron model of the "average child."

Howe Gets Clerk Post for County

The appointment of Raymond Howe, Sr., of Port Ewen as deputy clerk of the Board of Supervisors was announced today by Robert A. Snyder, clerk of the board.

Howe succeeds William W. Taylor of 249 Washington avenue, who retired from the position effective August 1.

Howe is a former supervisor, having served the Town of Esopus in the board for eight years. In 1936 he succeeded Roscoe V. Elsworth, now a supreme court judge, and was followed in 1944 by John T. Groves, present county treasurer.

Taylor had been deputy clerk for more than 10 years. Formerly account clerk for G. W. Van Slyke and Horton Cigar Manufacturers, Taylor was named as acting deputy clerk when Elliott Rogers of Kingston entered the armed forces early in World War 2. At that time, James A. Simpson of Phoenicia was clerk of the board.

Howe, who formerly conducted an office equipment business under his own name at 6 Broadway, for a short time prior to his appointment to his present position was employed by the Ulster County Welfare Department.

The office of the clerk of the Board of Supervisors is in the court house on Wall street, Kingston.

Anti-Red Bill Passes

New Delhi, India, Aug. 12 (AP)—With the echo of a Communist call to violence ringing through the hall, the Indian Parliament's Upper House passed today the preventive detention bill aimed at curbing the Reds. P. P. Sundarayya, leader of the Communist membership in both houses of Parliament, threatened that the Communist party would "shoot landlords, capitalists and blackmarketers" if it came to power. "In one week we would bring them all in before the people and if necessary shoot them," the Communist leader declared. "If the people want it, the people have the right to do it."

Senator's Report

of supervision for allocation by states, free of any federal compulsion or influence.

Kingston Hospital made application some time ago for this grant. When nothing was heard regarding what action the state commission planned, Senator Wicks made a personal appeal on behalf of the local institution to members of the planning board. The allocation notice received by Senator Wicks August 4 was the result, his office informed The Freeman today.

Japanese Report

in a Japanese document to come at the end.

Veiled wording also was typical of a Japanese government report. In these, the uglier the charge the more indirect the wording.

The committee said national treasures during the war were badly supervised and carelessly recorded and that theft would have been "quite easy."

The committee concluded:

"This committee is going to determine whether there was any misconduct. x x x"

The committee said a point still to be clarified is "how this affair stands in international law."

No Estimate of Treasure

The report gave no estimate of the treasure it said is missing.

Japanese press comment was caustic and recalled the case of Col. Edward J. Murray, former U. S. custodian of the Bank of Japan, convicted in 1949 of taking nearly $85,000 (wholesale value) in diamonds from the bank's vaults. He contended they were a gift. Murray was sentenced to 10 years but this was cut to five and he was paroled.

Last week the provincial government at Sendai, in northern Japan, reported to the committee that two U. S. officers took away $2,800,000 worth of platinum and diamonds in 1945 and 1947, leaving receipts, one written on a piece of scrap paper.

The committee in June began trying to locate former Japanese army and navy assets as well as precious metals and jewels sold or given the government during World War 2. The crown, worn by the empress on state occasions before the war, was one of the donated items.

Machinist Held On Murder Charge For Jury Review

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 12 (AP)—A 46-year-old machinist was back in a jail cell today awaiting grand jury action on a murder charge filed against him in connection with the slaying of his wife near this northeastern Pennsylvania city. He contends two hitch-hikers shot her.

Jonah L. Roberts was returned to Luzerne county prison following a hearing in which he sought to gain freedom on a writ of habeas corpus. The hearing produced testimony from a 24-year-old woman that she had 25 trysts with Roberts while his wife was still living.

His wife, 45-year-old Mary Roberts, was shot to death on June 10 on a lonely road some six miles north of here. Roberts contends the hitch-hikers forced them to the spot, off the main highway, and shot his wife in the head after she resisted their advances. He suffered a wound in the left shoulder.

Bail Is Denied

Judge Thomas M. Lewis denied bail to Roberts in jailing him to await action by the ground jury which convenes Aug. 25.

A slender blonde woman, 24-year-old Frances Allen of Shickshinny, testified she had 25 trysts with Roberts over a period of five months while his wife still lived. She is employed at a dress factory where Roberts worked as a machinist.

Another witness, Joshua Bryant, testified Roberts purchased a .32 caliber revolver at Bryant's bicycle shop at Kingston April 25.

Bryant also claimed Roberts summoned him to his bedside in Wilkes-Barre General Hospital after the shooting and handed him a note asking Bryant—if he were ever questioned—to identify the purchaser of the revolver by a description unlike that of Roberts'.

It's All Underground

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 12 (AP)—Binghamton looked underground for a silver lining today. About $300 worth of dimes bounced through the sewer grate before the First National Bank yesterday. Two employes of the Triple Cities Traction Company were lugging a canvas bag containing $1,000 in dimes to the bank. They said it snagged on something and ripped. Company officials said about $700 worth of dimes was recovered.

DESERTION LAWS

It may be hard for decent people to believe, but there are many cases in which fathers desert their families and leave them without support. At one time cooperation between states on this matter was so poor that all a delinquent husband had to do was to cross a state line and he might find relief from his obligation. Such desertion left the duties of caring for the families up to the state.

Now forty states have joined a mutual dependency pact with similar laws on desertion. Under the pact a man who skips to another state is forced by authorities there to contribute to the support of his family. Along with forcing irresponsible husbands to do their duty the law sometimes encourages erring husbands to rejoin their families for another try at making their marriages work.

There are faults in these dependency laws. The cost of filing support claims is too high in some states and works a hardship on women who must invoke it. But at least the laws are working and discourage men who are of such weak character that they would desert their families from abandoning them.

The pact between the states is an excellent example of inter-state cooperation and should encourage other ventures along the same line.

THE SPANISH PRISONER

Selling gold bricks or the Brooklyn Bridge are traditional forms of swindling, not often heard of now. They may not be the oldest. That doubtful honor goes to the Spanish Prisoner fraud, which has been tried for a good many years and is still going strong. An effort was made the other day to catch librarians attending the New York convention of the American Library Association.

The technique is always the same, and the wording practically so. The alleged prisoner represents himself as in jail in Spain or Latin America and therefore unable to lay his hands on a large sum of money which he owns. This he will share with any kind stranger who helps him. The recipient of the letter is to send bail money and meet him at an appointed place near the jail, and receive his share. Needless to say, whatever money he sends is lost; if he should keep the appointment, he is robbed or mauled, or both.

A lure as improbable as this must have worked in the past, or it would not have been repeated. Anyone getting such an invitation should turn it over to the postal authorities, who will try to track down the swindler. In any case the recipient should not expect to benefit. Like most other get-rich-quick schemes, this is meant to profit the writer, not the receiver.

EXPERIMENT IN ITALY

A story in an Italian newspaper describing the explosion of a hydrogen bomb by an Italian scientist caused a flurry of interest in the world. Later reports denied that such an explosion had been accomplished but said that what had really happened was that minute quantities of hydrogen had been transformed into helium. The second report, while less startling than the first, is of great interest to American scientists who are still seeking the key to the hydrogen bomb.

The fact that a scientist in Italy is experimenting with it should serve as a reminder to the leaders of the world that the days of major and minor powers, as far as warfare is concerned, are numbered. Any country can experiment with the terrible weapons of today and genius is not the exclusive patent of large nations. A small country with a large supply of atomic bombs or hydrogen bombs, and a way of using them, would be as dangerous as any large country.

It becomes more and more apparent that the safety of the world cannot depend on weapons and armament. Only a real attempt on the part of all countries to settle differences peacefully can assure security. Perhaps Russia will eventually realize this and men can stop the race toward their own destruction.

The cars and trucks in New York State, if lined up bumper to bumper, would stretch 919 more miles than all the state roads, according to James R. MacDuff, state motor vehicle commissioner. The roads measure 13,757 miles, and the cars 14,676. This condition is not confined to New York. Most of us are merely surprised that the discrepancy isn't greater.

'These Days'

DISARMAMENT

The aim of the Quakers is to achieve lasting and eternal peace. Of their pacifism, they are not ashamed in war as in peace. Quakers have produced excellent soldiers, but most of them would prefer non-combatant services. A small sect, they have done more than their proportionate share in the care of the hungry and the indigent.

As the aim of the Quakers is peace, they find themselves in emotional difficulties in a world torn by war. A group of them, "American Friends Service Committee," have devoted themselves to finding a road to peace between the United States and Soviet Russia. On this road, they have with singular regularity got lost because they insist on by-passing reality, which is that Soviet Russia is making war upon the United States, not because of anything that happened in 1939 or 1943 or 1945 or 1948, but because it is essential to the triumph of Marxism that the United States should be reduced or destroyed.

Quakers can never believe that, because they cannot accept any man or any group of men as essentially wicked. While this is a noble and lofty Christian doctrine, it utterly denies the entire philosophy of Marxism, which is that a Socialist world must be created by whatever means are at the moment and in each country available.

This quotation is taken from their pamphlet, "Toward Security Through Disarmament," as an example of their current thinking:

"Where the whole truth lies it is obviously impossible to tell. In an era dominated by nation-states, with most educational and propaganda media directed or deeply influenced by government or national patriots, citizens everywhere are taught to 'take sides.' Under these stresses, whatever the frame of government, most citizens become highly partisan and limit their views more and more to the bounds prescribed by official or majority opinion. The issues are too complex, too colored by conflicting propaganda, for dogmatic conclusions. . . ."

In accordance with this doctrine, the United States is equally to blame with Soviet Russia for the renewal of the war in 1945. Those who criticize Franklin D. Roosevelt as an appeaser and Harry Truman as a frightened man insist that they went far beyond reason to concede to Stalin more than he deserved for his participation in the war. This is particularly true with regard to the Far East.

If we are weak today, it is because we demobilized our forces too rapidly and discontinued the building of planes and put to much of our navy in mothballs. We are paying a heavy price for this assumption that Stalin is a decent person. Yet these Quakers say:

"But, it is asked, did not the United States unilaterally disarm after World War II? While it is true that we demobilized our army to a much larger extent than the Russians, yet the military strength of the United States has never been measured exclusively by the size of its standing army. For geographic reasons we rely primarily on sea and air power, while the Soviet Union is primarily a land power. If all categories of weapons are included, as they must be in any fair analysis of military strength, the theory of Amerisa's unilateral disarmament collapses. Since the war our production of atomic weapons has proceeded without pause and at an increased tempo, a far-flung network of air bases has been developed, and we have maintained a large complement of heavy aircraft usable for atomic bombing. Our wartime navy, by far the largest in the world, has been maintained on a stand-by basis. In no post-war year has our military budget fallen below 11 billion dollars. This is hardly unilateral disarmament."

They ignore the historic fact that in no year, since 1945, has the United States been free from the menace of war by Soviet Russia. Soviet Russia violated Potsdam by absorbing Rumania, Bulgaria, Poland, Albania—where there were no free elections. Soviet Russia impeded the reconstruction of Austria and Germany. Soviet Russia forced us to employ the Berlin airlift and to send our forces into Korea. Soviet Russia despoiled the United Nations by an excessive and unreasonable use of the veto, and by preventing important nations from becoming members.

During that period, 1945 to 1952, the United States has spent $50,000,000,000 on the reconstruction of the world and has submitted to a humiliation in Korea rather than accept the gauge of another world war.

That Body of Yours

EMPLOYABILITY OF EPILEPTICS

An employer can hardly be blamed if he hesitates or refuses to employ an epileptic as he has in mind not only the epileptic himself getting hurt but possibly injuring others. And there is always, of course, the interruption of work if an epileptic attack occurs in an employe.

However, as there are now thousands of epileptics gainfully employed and whose work is always up to par because of their carefulness, it is of interest to the epileptic and his family to learn more about epilepsy and employment.

In Medical Annals of District of Columbia, Washington, we read that "the 7,000 employes of the United States Government Printing Office, include persons with various types of handicaps such as deaf persons, some with healed tuberculosis, amputees, and 11 or more with epilepsy." The United States Civil Service Commission does not reject epileptics for light or desk work provided "the person is under medical supervision and the disease is well controlled."

An epileptic, even if the disease is under control, may try to hide his illness but, when he learns that the medical staff is ready to help him, he is anxious to unburden himself. Those in whom the epilepsy is not under control and those who have severe seizures (grand mal) are immediately taken off hazardous work and placed on work that is not hazardous to themselves or to other employes.

In the 11 cases of epileptic employes, all symptoms are under control with various medicines, particularly barbital drugs and drugs to drive water out of the system, and a diet low in table salt.

The conclusion of the physicians in charge is that "gainful employment is unquestionably one of the best forms of treatmentt for epileptics."

When we remember how attacks of epilepsy were treated formerly, by the depressing drugs, the bromides, and that when an attack occurred during work, all work nearby was suspended temporarily and the patient dismissed from his job for his own and the safety of others, we can appreciate what epilepsy control means to the patient's morale and to the comfort and happiness of his family.

"---But All Candidates Pose With Fish"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—If Russian athletes in the recent Olympics had been half as versatile as Kremlin propagandists "reporting" the games, the Soviet would have been an easy winner.

As it happened, Russia managed to finish second to the United States (scoring 553½ points to our 610) chiefly by piling up a big early lead in women's gymnastic events in which the United States didn't compete. In practically all major sports events, including basketball, American male atletes clearly outshone their Soviet rivals.

However, radio Moscow performed some amazing feats of microphonery to distort the results. After continuous blasts at Olympic officials for "favoritism" to the United States—even while we were behind on points—the ingenious Russians concocted a special "scoring system" of their own for satellite listeners.

Here is a brief rundown of iron curtain reports on the Helsinki contests as monitored by our state department:

On July 29 (while the U. S. was threatening to take the lead) the Moscow home service reported that "unfair judging favors the U. S. in the Olympics." A day later, the satellite Warsaw radio quoted unnamed Finnish papers as saying that United States referees were "insolently changing decisions whenever they were detrimental to the U. S. team in wrestling events."

Later, the Bucharest Romania Libra headlined a feature article "Dishosnest proceedings arousing indignation of all sportsmen," the theme of which was that "a whole series of umpires of marshallized countries have resorted to downright stealing of victories attained in sports encounters by representatives of the countries of socialism."

While Russia was ahead on points, radio Moscow quoted the Tass New York correspondent as reporting that the scoring of 10 points for first place in athletic events (standard since 1920) was "embarrasing American sportsmen because it placed the Soviet so far ahead." The Moscow radio hotly accused the U. S. of trying to substitute another scoring system, giving seven points for first place.

However, when Russia fell behind, Soviet broadcasters adopted the seven-point scoring system themselves, thus trumping up a final score of Russia, 494 points, and the United States, 490 points. Iron Curtain listeners were even more confused when the Soviet tabulation was later changed to 494 points each for the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A.—a tie.

Tass used a similar technique to write off the decisive American victory. When the U. S. forged ahead, the Soviet news agency simply quit tabulating the score, explaining it was interested only in "individual victories" and that as far as Tass was concerned "there was no team winner in the 1952 Olympics."

Prices Uncontrolled

President Truman's idea of calling Congress back to consider rising prices should be accompanied by some close scrutiny of operations inside his own Office of Price Stabilization.

While Congress deserves a lot of blame for the price debacle, there has also been inexcusable neglect, if not sabotage, inside the agency supposed to police prices.

One thing that happened was that Ellis Arnall, the efficient ex-governor of Georgia, came into OPS with the idea that his predecessor, Mike Di Salle, had built up an efficient organization. That was not entirely the case. As a result, though Arnall trusted OPS officials to operate on their own, they didn't.

Another thing was that President Truman reached into OPS to urge the appointment of his old Kansas friend, Emmett O'Malley, Jr., son of the man who went to jail with boss Tom Pendergast for rooking the people of Missouri in connection with an insurance company scandal. While the crimes of a father should not be visited upon his son, nevertheless the younger O'Malley, now in charge of OPS enforcement, has been lax and politically minded.

Among other things, he dropped the big binder twine price conspiracy case which his predecessor, Ed Morgan, had spent $50,000 preparing. Also dropped without tough prosecution were the horsemeat scandal cases in Illinois, probably the greatest food scandals in the nation.

High-Price Advocate

Another interesting OPS official is Edward F. Phelps, director of OPS price operations and one of the key men in the entire price picture. Phelps was formerly assistant secretary of the National-American Wholesale Grocers Association; also vice president and director of the Waples-Platter Company, one of the largest food manufacturers and wholesalers in the southwest.

Phelps continues to have close friendships inside the National-American Wholesale Grocers Association for which he once worked and whose interests, of course, are in higher food prices. One of his friends is M. L. Toulme, executive vice president of this organization, who comes to Washington from time to time where he attends parties at the Mayflower in company with Phelps, Robert D. Cunningham and his wife, plus a girl friend who works with Mrs. Cunningham.

Cunningham is an accountant hired by Phelps on the recommendation of wholesale grocer Toulme, and a very chummy relationship seems to exist between the Cunninghams, OPS executive Phelps, and Toulme.

Regardless of what may be the cause and effect, Phelps is one of the high-price advocates inside OPS and his influence is important. He was made a member of Di Salle's decontrol committee, at which time he opposed putting a labor representative on the committee, though labor, representing the biggest bloc of consumers, was vitally affected.

In brief, if President Truman wants prices kept stabilized, he should not only give thought to calling Congress back, but should also set in order his own house which is charged with keeping prices down.

Today in Washington

Democratic Nominee Has Changed Tune: Doesn't Think Saving Is Foolish

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 12 — It's strange what a change just a few weeks make—even in a presidential campaign. Here is some interesting chronology:

June 11—News dispatches reported General Eisenhower as telling the New York delegation to the Republican National Convention that federal policies should be pointed toward a tax reduction based on a cut in the budget of $40,000,000,000 in the next two or three years and that this could be achieved if the Communist threat to the peace of the world were dispelled, as he believed it can be.

July 30—Governor Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, is described in news dispatches from Springfield, Ill., as answering General Eisenhower by saying that he felt "very strongly" that "foolish and irresponsible" promises of tax reduction were very "misleading." He said he hoped that neither party would offer forlorn hopes of large tax reductions while at the same time demanding a defense establishment adequate to security requirements.

August 9 — Dispatches from Springfield, attributed to an "authoritative source," reveal that Governor Stevenson feels that within two years there can be a substantial cut in defense spending and some start made toward lowering taxes and the national debt. He envisions a cut in military spending in the budget to be submitted to Congress for the fiscal year 1955, which begins July 1, 1954, and he emphasizes that his plan depends entirely on the condition that the world situation will get no worse in the meantime.

So now the Democratic nominee doesn't feel it is "foolish and irresponsible" to say in the middle of August what the Republican nominee said in the middle of June.

But the truly significant development is that somehow or other—by perception duly sharpened by contemporaneous happenings in the field of politics, or otherwise—the leaders have discovered that the American people have a real tax burden on their backs.

What, after all, interests 55,000,000 voters — if that be the number which the experts say will vote this autumn? What else touches the individual citizen so acutely as taxes? Yet, up to now, the Democratic administration has insisted that taxes aren't high enough, and President Truman has asked each year for higher taxes than Congress has been willing to vote. Only the political expediency of an election year prevented an insistence by the Truman administration during the recent session of Congress on another tax bill, sending tax rates still higher.

The argument usually made at the White House is that the wealthier classes aren't taxed enough and that corporations can stand even higher taxes. This sort of demagoguery is echoed by labor-union leaders, who have been insisting right along that tax rates could be increased.

Will Governor Stevenson follow the usual Democratic party line and recommend tax increases? His latest statement indicates that he would like to be recorded on the side of tax reduction now, but he hedges it, as do all the others, with the comment that everything is dependent on world conditions.

The present administration has not shown the slightest interest in making drastic reductions in those parts of the national budget which are not directly related to defense preparations. In fact, the administration has repeatedly argued for more non-defense spending on the theory that social progress demanded it. Does General Eisenhower have in mind cuts in the budget all along the line?

If the recent comments from both the Democratic and Republican nominees indicate an awareness of the tax problem and of the dangers that lie ahead when incentives are impaired—as they certainly will be if taxes are not reduced—then the debate in the newspaper dispatches will prove salutary, and it will not matter who urges tax reduction so long as there is some tangible basis for believing it will materialize in the not-too-far-distant future.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

"If the Republican party gives Clare Luce the nomination for United States senator to finish out the term of Brien McMahon, I will actively and militantly oppose her and she will go down to a devastating and humiliating defeat."

These be the fighting words of Miss Vivien Kellems, incomparably the most Republican Republican in Connecticut, who has been ditched twice, nevertheless, by the buck Republicans in command of the party machine. In 1950, rather than take this fighting expert on taxation and Republican doctrine and leader of a personal rebellion against the withholding tax waged in the courts at her own great expense, the bosses picked Prescott Bush, a Wall Street commuter who is a banking partner of the egregious Averell Harriman. Bush was licked. This year the Connecticut Republican convention was packed for Eisenhower in much more flagrant manner than the Taft Republicans were alleged to have employed against the CIO's filtrationists in Texas.

This convention handed the nomination for the next regular senatorial term to one William Purtell, who is widely unknown. It was a rather obvious and certainly unblushing design to bring about the re-election of William Benton, a rich left-wing Socialist of the "after me the deluge" school. This group of rich men includes China-Boy Luce, Clare's little husband; Marshall Field, who ran a Marxian paper in New York at great expense to the taxpayers through the deduction of his losses from taxable income; Harriman; Nelson Rockefeller and John Hay Whitney. Miss Kellems deserved the nomination so she announced that she would file as an independent and beat both Purtell and Benton.

It was well known that Brien McMahon, who still had four years to serve, was in a dying condition. When he died just after the Democratic national convention, the state Republican machine began to clank again. The nomination is to be auctioned or sold, according to custom, at a special convention in September. Clare Boothe Luce, the great religious leader, whose saintly countenance bespeaks a spiritual purity that somehow doesn't penetrate the consciousness of all beholders, demurely accepted the nomination in a telephone call to "Republican leaders" in Hartford. The New York Times, a Roosevelt-New Deal propaganda organ, which offered General Eisenhower to the Republican party, covered this telephone call in a special dispatch from Hartford which did not even mention Miss Kellems.

Luce and his wife, who recently wrote a book on the lives of the saints in collaboration with others, are nominal or technical residents of Connecticut. They have a country place away from it all between Ridgefield and Danbury. Benton lives in New York and Phoenix, Ariz., but keeps a technical residence in Connecticut for political purposes. He is another Park avenue type.

Miss Kellems lives in Mystic where she runs a factory. She spends an occasional night in New York waging her television crusade to organize the women of the country in a rebellion against inequalities, economic heresies, Marxian principles and unconstitutional provisions in the federal tax laws. She has a subscribed following of about 100,000 women in the country at large known as The Liberty Belles. In Chicago, although Vivien was not even given a ticket to the Republican convention, she whipped up an impromptu organizational meeting of The Liberty Belles and drew 800 women and men. She is constantly on the go, making Republican speeches. No Republican in Connecticut has an individual following comparable to hers either in the state or beyond its borders.

Mrs. Luce went to Hartford shortly before the regular Republican convention and made a speech at a girls' school.

"That was the first time she had set foot in Connecticut in two years," Miss Kellems said. "But now she gets Ike and Governor Adams of New Hampshire to send telegrams to Governor Lodge asking him to appoint her to the interim term. Who are they to butt into Connecticut's affairs? She has never done anything for Connecticut. She doesn't know anybody in the state except a few Park avenue and Wall street commuters. She doesn't care anything about Connecticut and she knows nothing about taxation. If the Republican machine nominates her, the women of Connecticut will rise up and give her a licking that she will never forget.

"I am not selfish about this. The Connecticut people are sick and tired of this snooty Park avenue attitude. These people think of the people of Connecticut as their political serfs. They use the voters to get themselves elected so they can practice their dilettante socialism on us. They condescend to come among us only at election times, but I tell you the women are onto this game and I will campaign every city and hamlet organizing sentiment to throw these people off our backs."

Vivien said she could think of nothing more tempting than an opportunity to meet Clare face to face in a grand debate on taxation and other domestic problems of the state.

"Get her for me," Vivien said, "and I will show her up as a person absolutely uninformed on economics and taxation. I am fighting for Republican principles and the Republican machine is afraid of me because it is run by a lot of effete, patronizing penthouse Socialists through their staff of contented petty jobholders."

Mrs. Luce's collaborator on the life of St. Francis of Assisi is Paul Gallico. Thus an old relationship is resumed in a drastic change of Metier. They collaborated many years ago when she was an editor of Vanity Fair and he was a budding writer on rugged phases of city life.

Q—How did the channel in the East River receive the name Hell Gate?

A—It may have been named by the early Dutch settlers of New York because of its swift current and rough reefs. There is also a belief that the name came from the Dutch "Hellegate" as the whole of the East River was once known.

EXPERIMENT IN ITALY

A story in an Italian newspaper describing the explosion of a hydrogen bomb by an Italian scientist caused a flurry of interest in the world. Later reports denied that such an explosion had been accomplished but said that what had really happened was that minute quantities of hydrogen had been transformed into helium. The second report, while less startling than the first, is of great interest to American scientists who are still seeking the key to the hydrogen bomb.

The fact that a scientist in Italy is experimenting with it should serve as a reminder to the leaders of the world that the days of major and minor powers, as far as warfare is concerned, are numbered. Any country can experiment with the terrible weapons of today and genius is not the exclusive patent of large nations. A small country with a large supply of atomic bombs or hydrogen bombs, and a way of using them, would be as dangerous as any large country.

It becomes more and more apparent that the safety of the world cannot depend on weapons and armament. Only a real attempt on the part of all countries to settle differences peacefully can assure security. Perhaps Russia will eventually realize this and men can stop the race toward their own destruction.

The cars and trucks in New York State, if lined up bumper to bumper, would stretch 919 more miles than all the state roads, according to James R. MacDuff, state motor vehicle commissioner. The roads measure 13,757 miles, and the cars 14,676. This condition is not confined to New York. Most of us are merely surprised that the discrepancy isn't greater.

DISARMAMENT

The aim of the Quakers is to achieve lasting and eternal peace. Of their pacifism, they are not ashamed in war as in peace. Quakers have produced excellent soldiers, but most of them would prefer non-combatant services. A small sect, they have done more than their proportionate share in the care of the hungry and the indigent.

As the aim of the Quakers is peace, they find themselves in emotional difficulties in a world torn by war. A group of them, "American Friends Service Committee," have devoted themselves to finding a road to peace between the United States and Soviet Russia. On this road, they have with singular regularity got lost because they insist on by-passing reality, which is that Soviet Russia is making war upon the United States, not because of anything that happened in 1939 or 1943 or 1945 or 1948, but because it is essential to the triumph of Marxism that the United States should be reduced or destroyed.

Quakers can never believe that, because they cannot accept any man or any group of men as essentially wicked. While this is a noble and lofty Christian doctrine, it utterly denies the entire philosophy of Marxism, which is that a Socialist world must be created by whatever means are at the moment and in each country available.

This quotation is taken from their pamphlet, "Toward Security Through Disarmament," as an example of their current thinking:

"Where the whole truth lies it is obviously impossible to tell. In an era dominated by nation-states, with most educational and propaganda media directed or deeply influenced by government or national patriots, citizens everywhere are taught to 'take sides.' Under these stresses, whatever the frame of government, most citizens become highly partisan and limit their views more and more to the bounds prescribed by official or majority opinion. The issues are too complex, too colored by conflicting propaganda, for dogmatic conclusions. . . ."

In accordance with this doctrine, the United States is equally to blame with Soviet Russia for the renewal of the war in 1945. Those who criticize Franklin D. Roosevelt as an appeaser and Harry Truman as a frightened man insist that they went far beyond reason to concede to Stalin more than he deserved for his participation in the war. This is particularly true with regard to the Far East.

If we are weak today, it is because we demobilized our forces too rapidly and discontinued the building of planes and put to much of our navy in mothballs. We are paying a heavy price for this assumption that Stalin is a decent person. Yet these Quakers say:

"But, it is asked, did not the United States unilaterally disarm after World War II? While it is true that we demobilized our army to a much larger extent than the Russians, yet the military strength of the United States has never been measured exclusively by the size of its standing army. For geographic reasons we rely primarily on sea and air power, while the Soviet Union is primarily a land power. If all categories of weapons are included, as they must be in any fair analysis of military strength, the theory of Amerisa's unilateral disarmament collapses. Since the war our production of atomic weapons has proceeded without pause and at an increased tempo, a far-flung network of air bases has been developed, and we have maintained a large complement of heavy aircraft usable for atomic bombing. Our wartime navy, by far the largest in the world, has been maintained on a stand-by basis. In no post-war year has our military budget fallen below 11 billion dollars. This is hardly unilateral disarmament."

They ignore the historic fact that in no year, since 1945, has the United States been free from the menace of war by Soviet Russia. Soviet Russia violated Potsdam by absorbing Rumania, Bulgaria, Poland, Albania—where there were no free elections. Soviet Russia impeded the reconstruction of Austria and Germany. Soviet Russia forced us to employ the Berlin airlift and to send our forces into Korea. Soviet Russia despoiled the United Nations by an excessive and unreasonable use of the veto, and by preventing important nations from becoming members.

During that period, 1945 to 1952, the United States has spent $50,000,000,000 on the reconstruction of the world and has submitted to a humiliation in Korea rather than accept the gauge of another world war.

That Body of Yours

EMPLOYABILITY OF EPILEPTICS

An employer can hardly be blamed if he hesitates or refuses to employ an epileptic as he has in mind not only the epileptic himself getting hurt but possibly injuring others. And there is always, of course, the interruption of work if an epileptic attack occurs in an employe.

However, as there are now thousands of epileptics gainfully employed and whose work is always up to par because of their carefulness, it is of interest to the epileptic and his family to learn more about epilepsy and employment.

In Medical Annals of District of Columbia, Washington, we read that "the 7,000 employes of the United States Government Printing Office, include persons with various types of handicaps such as deaf persons, some with healed tuberculosis, amputees, and 11 or more with epilepsy." The United States Civil Service Commission does not reject epileptics for light or desk work provided "the person is under medical supervision and the disease is well controlled."

An epileptic, even if the disease is under control, may try to hide his illness but, when he learns that the medical staff is ready to help him, he is anxious to unburden himself. Those in whom the epilepsy is not under control and those who have severe seizures (grand mal) are immediately taken off hazardous work and placed on work that is not hazardous to themselves or to other employes.

In the 11 cases of epileptic employes, all symptoms are under control with various medicines, particularly barbital drugs and drugs to drive water out of the system, and a diet low in table salt.

The conclusion of the physicians in charge is that "gainful employment is unquestionably one of the best forms of treatmentt for epileptics."

When we remember how attacks of epilepsy were treated formerly, by the depressing drugs, the bromides, and that when an attack occurred during work, all work nearby was suspended temporarily and the patient dismissed from his job for his own and the safety of others, we can appreciate what epilepsy control means to the patient's morale and to the comfort and happiness of his family.

"---But All Candidates Pose With Fish"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—If Russian athletes in the recent Olympics had been half as versatile as Kremlin propagandists "reporting" the games, the Soviet would have been an easy winner.

As it happened, Russia managed to finish second to the United States (scoring 553½ points to our 610) chiefly by piling up a big early lead in women's gymnastic events in which the United States didn't compete. In practically all major sports events, including basketball, American male atletes clearly outshone their Soviet rivals.

However, radio Moscow performed some amazing feats of microphonery to distort the results. After continuous blasts at Olympic officials for "favoritism" to the United States—even while we were behind on points—the ingenious Russians concocted a special "scoring system" of their own for satellite listeners.

Here is a brief rundown of iron curtain reports on the Helsinki contests as monitored by our state department:

On July 29 (while the U. S. was threatening to take the lead) the Moscow home service reported that "unfair judging favors the U. S. in the Olympics." A day later, the satellite Warsaw radio quoted unnamed Finnish papers as saying that United States referees were "insolently changing decisions whenever they were detrimental to the U. S. team in wrestling events."

Later, the Bucharest Romania Libra headlined a feature article "Dishonest proceedings arousing indignation of all sportsmen," the theme of which was that "a whole series of umpires of marshallized countries have resorted to downright stealing of victories attained in sports encounters by representatives of the countries of socialism."

While Russia was ahead on points, radio Moscow quoted the Tass New York correspondent as reporting that the scoring of 10 points for first place in athletic events (standard since 1920) was "embarrasing American sportsmen because it placed the Soviet so far ahead." The Moscow radio hotly accused the U. S. of trying to substitute another scoring system, giving seven points for first place.

However, when Russia fell behind, Soviet broadcasters adopted the seven-point scoring system themselves, thus trumping up a final score of Russia, 494 points, and the United States, 490 points. Iron Curtain listeners were even more confused when the Soviet tabulation was later changed to 494 points each for the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A.—a tie.

Tass used a similar technique to write off the decisive American victory. When the U. S. forged ahead, the Soviet news agency simply quit tabulating the score, explaining it was interested only in "individual victories" and that as far as Tass was concerned "there was no team winner in the 1952 Olympics."

Prices Uncontrolled

President Truman's idea of calling Congress back to consider rising prices should be accompanied by some close scrutiny of operations inside his own Office of Price Stabilization.

While Congress deserves a lot of blame for the price debacle, there has also been inexcusable neglect, if not sabotage, inside the agency supposed to police prices.

One thing that happened was that Ellis Arnall, the efficient ex-governor of Georgia, came into OPS with the idea that his predecessor, Mike Di Salle, had built up an efficient organization. That was not entirely the case. As a result, though Arnall trusted OPS officials to operate on their own, they didn't.

Another thing was that President Truman reached into OPS to urge the appointment of his old Kansas friend, Emmett O'Malley, Jr., son of the man who went to jail with boss Tom Pendergast for rooking the people of Missouri in connection with an insurance company scandal. While the crimes of a father should not be visited upon his son, nevertheless the younger O'Malley, now in charge of OPS enforcement, has been lax and politically minded.

Among other things, he dropped the big binder twine price conspiracy case which his predecessor, Ed Morgan, had spent $50,000 preparing. Also dropped without tough prosecution were the horse-meat scandal cases in Illinois, probably the greatest food scandals in the nation.

High-Price Advocate

Another interesting OPS official is Edward F. Phelps, director of OPS price operations and one of the key men in the entire price picture. Phelps was formerly assistant secretary of the National-American Wholesale Grocers Association; also vice president and director of the Waples-Platter Company, one of the largest food manufacturers and wholesalers in the southwest.

Phelps continues to have close friendships inside the National-American Wholesale Grocers Association for which he once worked and whose interests, of course, are in higher food prices. One of his friends is M. L. Toulme, executive vice president of this organization, who comes to Washington from time to time where he attends parties at the Mayflower in company with Phelps, Robert D. Cunningham and his wife, plus a girl friend who works with Mrs. Cunningham.

Cunningham is an accountant hired by Phelps on the recommendation of wholesale grocer Toulme, and a very chummy relationship seems to exist between the Cunninghams, OPS executive Phelps, and Toulme.

Regardless of what may be the cause and effect, Phelps is one of the high-price advocates inside OPS and his influence is important. He was made a member of Di Salle's decontrol committee, at which time he opposed putting a labor representative on the committee, though labor, representing the biggest bloc of consumers, was vitally affected.

In brief, if President Truman wants prices kept stabilized, he should not only give thought to calling Congress back, but should also set in order his own house which is charged with keeping prices down.

Today in Washington

Democratic Nominee Has Changed Tune: Doesn't Think Saving Is Foolish

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 12 — It's strange what a change just a few weeks make—even in a presidential campaign. Here is some interesting chronology:

June 11—News dispatches reported General Eisenhower as telling the New York delegation to the Republican National Convention that federal policies should be pointed toward a tax reduction based on a cut in the budget of $40,000,000,000 in the next two or three years and that this could be achieved if the Communist threat to the peace of the world were dispelled, as he believed it can be.

July 30—Governor Stevenson, the Democratic nominee, is described in news dispatches from Springfield, Ill., as answering General Eisenhower by saying that he felt "very strongly" that "foolish and irresponsible" promises of tax reduction were very "misleading." He said he hoped that neither party would offer forlorn hopes of large tax reductions while at the same time demanding a defense establishment adequate to security requirements.

August 9 — Dispatches from Springfield, attributed to an "authoritative source," reveal that Governor Stevenson feels that within two years there can be a substantial cut in defense spending and some start made toward lowering taxes and the national debt. He envisions a cut in military spending in the budget to be submitted to Congress for the fiscal year 1955, which begins July 1, 1954, and he emphasizes that his plan depends entirely on the condition that the world situation will get no worse in the meantime.

So now the Democratic nominee doesn't feel it is "foolish and irresponsible" to say in the middle of August what the Republican nominee said in the middle of June.

But the truly significant development is that somehow or other—by perception duly sharpened by contemporaneous happenings in the field of politics, or otherwise—the leaders have discovered that the American people have a real tax burden on their backs.

What, after all, interests 55,000,000 voters — if that be the number which the experts say will vote this autumn? What else touches the individual citizen so acutely as taxes? Yet, up to now, the Democratic administration has insisted that taxes aren't high enough, and President Truman has asked each year for higher taxes than Congress has been willing to vote. Only the political expediency of an election year prevented an insistence by the Truman administration during the recent session of Congress on another tax bill, sending tax rates still higher.

The argument usually made at the White House is that the wealthier classes aren't taxed enough and that corporations can stand even higher taxes. This sort of demagoguery is echoed by labor-union leaders, who have been insisting right along that tax rates could be increased.

Will Governor Stevenson follow the usual Democratic party line and recommend tax increases? His latest statement indicates that he would like to be recorded on the side of tax reduction now, but he hedges it, as do all the others, with the comment that everything is dependent on world conditions.

The present administration has not shown the slightest interest in making drastic reductions in those parts of the national budget which are not directly related to defense preparations. In fact, the administration has repeatedly argued for more non-defense spending on the theory that social progress demanded it. Does General Eisenhower have in mind cuts in the budget all along the line?

If the recent comments from both the Democratic and Republican nominees indicate an awareness of the tax problem and of the dangers that lie ahead when incentives are impaired—as they certainly will be if taxes are not reduced—then the debate in the newspaper dispatches will prove salutary, and it will not matter who urges tax reduction so long as there is some tangible basis for believing it will materialize in the not-too-far-distant future.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

"If the Republican party gives Clare Luce the nomination for United States senator to finish out the term of Brien McMahon, I will actively and militantly oppose her and she will go down to a devastating and humiliating defeat."

These be the fighting words of Miss Vivien Kellems, incomparably the most Republican Republican in Connecticut, who has been ditched twice, nevertheless, by the buck Republicans in command of the party machine. In 1950, rather than take this fighting expert on taxation and Republican doctrine and leader of a personal rebellion against the withholding tax waged in the courts at her own great expense, the bosses picked Prescott Bush, a Wall Street commuter who is a banking partner of the egregious Averell Harriman. Bush was licked. This year the Connecticut Republican convention was packed for Eisenhower in much more flagrant manner than the Taft Republicans were alleged to have employed against the CIO's filtrationists in Texas.

This convention handed the nomination for the next regular senatorial term to one William Purtell, who is widely unknown. It was a rather obvious and certainly unblushing design to bring about the re-election of William Benton, a rich left-wing Socialist of the "after me the deluge" school. This group of rich men includes China-Boy Luce, Clare's little husband; Marshall Field, who ran a Marxian paper in New York at great expense to the taxpayers through the deduction of his losses from taxable income; Harriman; Nelson Rockefeller and John Hay Whitney. Miss Kellems deserved the nomination so she announced that she would file as an independent and beat both Purtell and Benton.

It was well known that Brien McMahon, who still had four years to serve, was in a dying condition. When he died just after the Democratic national convention, the state Republican machine began to clank again. The nomination is to be auctioned or sold, according to custom, at a special convention in September. Clare Boothe Luce, the great religious leader, whose saintly countenance bespeaks a spiritual purity that somehow doesn't penetrate the consciousness of all beholders, demurely accepted the nomination in a telephone call to "Republican leaders" in Hartford. The New York Times, a Roosevelt-New Deal propaganda organ, which offered General Eisenhower to the Republican party, covered this telephone call in a special dispatch from Hartford which did not even mention Miss Kellems.

Luce and his wife, who recently wrote a book on the lives of the saints in collaboration with others, are nominal or technical residents of Connecticut. They have a country place away from it all between Ridgefield and Danbury. Benton lives in New York and Phoenix, Ariz., but keeps a technical residence in Connecticut for political purposes. He is another Park avenue type.

Miss Kellems lives in Mystic where she runs a factory. She spends an occasional night in New York waging her television crusade to organize the women of the country in a rebellion against inequalities, economic heresies, Marxian principles and unconstitutional provisions in the federal tax laws. She has a subscribed following of about 100,000 women in the country at large known as The Liberty Belles. In Chicago, although Vivien was not even given a ticket to the Republican convention, she whipped up an impromptu organizational meeting of The Liberty Belles and drew 800 women and men. She is constantly on the go, making Republican speeches. No Republican in Connecticut has an individual following comparable to hers either in the state or beyond its borders.

Mrs. Luce went to Hartford shortly before the regular Republican convention and made a speech at a girls' school.

"That was the first time she had set foot in Connecticut in two years," Miss Kellems said. "But now she gets Ike and Governor Adams of New Hampshire to send telegrams to Governor Lodge asking him to appoint her to the interim term. Who are they to butt into Connecticut's affairs? She has never done anything for Connecticut. She doesn't know anybody in the state except a few Park avenue and Wall street commuters. She doesn't care anything about Connecticut and she knows nothing about taxation. If the Republican machine nominates her, the women of Connecticut will rise up and give her a licking that she will never forget.

"I am not selfish about this. The Connecticut people are sick and tired of this snooty Park avenue attitude. These people think of the people of Connecticut as their political serfs. They use the voters to get themselves elected so they can practice their dilettante socialism on us. They condescend to come among us only at election times, but I tell you the women are onto this game and I will campaign every city and hamlet organizing sentiment to throw these people off our backs."

Vivien said she could think of nothing more tempting than an opportunity to meet Clare face to face in a grand debate on taxation and other domestic problems of the state.

"Get her for me," Vivien said, "and I will show her up as a person absolutely uninformed on economics and taxation. I am fighting for Republican principles and the Republican machine is afraid of me because it is run by a lot of effete, patronizing penthouse Socialists through their staff of contented petty jobholders."

Mrs. Luce's collaborator on the life of St. Francis of Assisi is Paul Gallico. Thus an old relationship is resumed in a drastic change of Metier. They collaborated many years ago when she was an editor of Vanity Fair and he was a budding writer on rugged phases of city life.

Improvement Underway

Havana (AP)—The revolutionary government of President Batista is revolutionizing the picturesque bohio, a thatched hut in which thousands of Cubans live in rural areas. The government has set up a special commission to inspect rural housing to bring it up to minimum standards. The bohio, made of the thin pliable leaves and the thick, stout fronds of the oryal palm tree, must have a concrete floor, a good supply of good water and adequate toilet facilities, says Batista. If the owner fails to meet these standards, the government will step in and do the work at the owner's expense. A check made by the army agency shows that only 6,000 of Cuba's 80,000 bohios meet minimum requirements.

Author Was Poor Student

Carbondale, Ill. (AP)—A Southern Illinois University English teacher says Robert Lewis Taylor, author of six successful books, was one of her poorest students. "Once when asked to write something," Mrs. Mae T. Smith recalls, "he turned it into a wild conglomeration of impossible situations that had not the remotest connection with the assignment. "His paper was returned fairly blushing with red ink, the recollection of which makes me do the blushing now. I've wished many times since that I had kept that zany story. It would be worth a tidy sum now in the hands of his publishers."

Improvement Underway

Havana (AP)—The revolutionary government of President Batista is revolutionizing the picturesque bohio, a thatched hut in which thousands of Cubans live in rural areas. The government has set up a special commission to inspect rural housing to bring it up to minimum standards. The bohio, made of the thin pliable leaves and the thick, stout fronds of the oryal palm tree, must have a concrete floor, a good supply of good water and adequate toilet facilities, says Batista. If the owner fails to meet these standards, the government will step in and do the work at the owner's expense. A check made by the army agency shows that only 6,000 of Cuba's 80,000 bohios meet minimum requirements.

Author Was Poor Student

Carbondale, Ill. (AP)—A Southern Illinois University English teacher says Robert Lewis Taylor, author of six successful books, was one of her poorest students. "Once when asked to write something," Mrs. Mae T. Smith recalls, "he turned it into a wild conglomeration of impossible situations that had not the remotest connection with the assignment. "His paper was returned fairly blushing with red ink, the recollection of which makes me do the blushing now. I've wished many times since that I had kept that zany story. It would be worth a tidy sum now in the hands of his publishers."

Can't See Wrong In Slot Machines If Fines Are Paid

Tracy, Calif., Aug. 12 (AP)—This small city's police judge and police chief said today they see nothing wrong in a former city practice of regularly fining slot machine operators while the slots stayed in action.

Details came to light yesterday in Washington when the U. S. Tax Court ruled that Charles A. Clark, former Tracy slot machine operator, could not deduct the fines from his income for tax purposes.

Clark told the court he used to have an arrangement with the city under which he was allowed to operate the illegal slots, so long as he paid the city $25 a month in fines for each machine.

Clark made the deductions on his income tax returns under the heading of "taxes, licenses, and permits."

But the court, in pointing out that the city did not issue him a permit for his slots and that the machines were illegal in California, called the arrangement a "sham."

$32,225 Paid

Clark, the court said, kept careful records and these revealed that he paid $32,225 in slot machine fines, by check, through the police chief, from the beginning of 1944 through 1946.

There was no dispute today from either Chief of Police E. C. Wyman or Police Court Judge Fen Jackson that the fines had been assessed and paid.

Both declared the fines were "legitimate fines" and went from the police court into the city coffers.

"It was a city policy," said Jackson. "Just one of those things. It got started and grew. Slot machines were knocked over every so often by the police. I'd fine them (the operators) and turn the money over to the city."

$9,000 Every Three Months

Jackson added that the fines levied against Clark and other slot operators netted the city between $7,000 and $9,000 every three months.

Wyman and Jackson agreed that the system was in effect from 1944 to 1946, that it was stopped after the California attorney general "really made slots illegal."

Asked if he knew slot machines were illegal at the time, Wyman said:

"Don't be silly—no comment."

UN Sends Regrets On Overflight

Munsan, Korea, Aug. 12 (AP)—The UN command said today the two or three jet planes which flew over the Panmunjom truce talks site Sunday in violation of its neutrality probably were United Nations planes.

The statement was in a note from Col. Charles W. McCarthy, senior UN command liaison officer, to Col. Chang Chun-san, top Red liaison officer, delivered at Panmunjom in response to a Red protest.

The note said witnesses were unable to observe identifying marks on the planes but "we have concluded in all probability the aircraft in question were those of the United Nations.

"This overflight is regretted. Our side will make continued efforts to prevent occurrences of this kind."

The truce talks are in their third successive weeklong recess. They are scheduled to be resumed Aug. 19.

Meat Balls Combine Pork, Veal

MEAT BALLS of pork and veal are prepared in traditional Hungarian style, served over noodles and sprinkled with paprika.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

These Hungarian meat balls are outstanding. The meat mixture is a combination of ground pork and veal with a hint of grated lemon rind and nutmeg held together with rolled oats. In traditional Hungarian fashion, the meat balls are browned slowly and simmered gently in a rich sour cream sauce.

If chilled in the refrigerator for a while before handling, the meat mixture is easier to form into small meat balls. Much of the preparation can be done ahead of time, up to the point where the balls are cooked in sour cream. The final cooking should be done just before dinnertime to prevent any chance of curdling.

Hungarian Meat Balls
(Makes 6 servings)

Meat Balls: Three-quarters pound ground veal, ¼ pound ground lean pork, ⅓ cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked), 1 egg, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg.

Sauce: One cup sour clear.

Combine all ingredients for the meat balls. Shape the mixture into small balls and brown in hot fat in a frying pan. When well browned, add sour cream; cover and simmer 20 minutes. Serve over noodles. Sprinkle with a dash of paprika.

Deep Dish Cherry Pudding
(Makes 6 servings)

Fruit Base: One tablespoon cornstarch, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 pint red pitted cherries (No 2 can).

To make fruit base, combine cornstarch, sugar and salt. Drain juice from cherries and add to dry ingredients. Stir well; cook over medium heat until sauce is thickened and clear; stir frequently. Add cherries and pour into 2-quart casserole.

Batter: ¼ cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, beaten, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon mace, 1 cup pancake ready-mix.

To make batter, cream shortening; add sugar and egg; combine well. Stir milk and mace into mixture. Add pancake ready-mix. Stir only enough to combine ingredients. Drop by tablespoons over hot cerries; then spread batter to distribute evenly over surface.

Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes, or until surface is firm. Serve warm.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Blackberries, puffed rice, soft-cooked eggs, toasted English muffins, butter or margarine, jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Creamed dried beef over corn meal muffins, fresh or frozen peas, sliced oranges and bananas, tea, milk.

DINNER: Chilled tomato juice, Hungarian meat balls on noodles, toasted garlic bread, mixed green salad, French dressing, deep-dish cherry pudding, iced coffee, milk.

Patrolman Shot During Argument

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—Patrolman James J. McGillion, 35, was shot and seriously wounded on a Harlem sidewalk at 3 a. m. today (EST).

Recovering consciousness at Knickerbocker Hospital, he told fellow officers he was shot while attempting to stop an argument between two Negroes.

He said one of the Negroes drew a gun when he identified himself. McGillion drew his own gun and the man fired, grabbing McGillion's revolver.

The two men fled, and the policeman followed them until he collapsed, he said.

At Least 10 Are Killed

Berlin, Aug. 12 (AP)—At least 10 persons were killed last Saturday as the result of an explosion in the Soviet zone Baltic resort of Ahlbeck, the West Berlin newspaper Telegraf reported today. The accident occurred, the report said, during the celebration of the resort's 100th anniversary when a steel container of gas used to fill children's toy balloons exploded. The incident could not be confirmed by West Berlin authorities.

The Soviets, in their propaganda press, are saying they won the Olympic games. They go into no details; but, following their claims of past years of invention and discovery, they run true to form in boasting of their athletic prowess.

America walloped them terribly in everything in which we competed with them. And an interesting observation of this competition is that there was a good spirit of friendship between the Russian and American athletes.

I am led to say that there is no wide gap between the character of the Russian citizen and his American counterpart. The United States basketball team played Russia twice during the Olympics and, at the end of our second victory, the star of the Soviets and one of our leading players posed for the cameramen and between them they held a Finnish enthusiast.

The Soviet political dynasty, whose power centers in the Kremlin, is responsible for these deliberate lies. It is a cruel thing when millions upon millions of people live under a tyrannical gang. When lies about athletic prowess are published, one gets an idea of the kind of world we face. Purges, slave labor camps, murder, bearing false witness—these are Soviet commonplaces.

Has communism and sound moral and ethical foundations? I doubt it. Lying about sports is unpardonable. But communism will stoop to anything to get its way.

When will this slave labor-free man controversy resolve itself? What will it cost in principles, in lives and in money? Nobody knows. But resolve itself it will. And every man, woman and child in America is involved in this struggle.

In sports our best athletes meet the best Russians. The natural and normal camaraderie between the contestants is later poisoned by the wicked Kremlin rules and their captive stooges. The perpetrators of this deceit are the biggest double-crossers in history.

The social, moral and ethical and economic foundations of the world have a common base. What happens in one place will occur in another. That is what I constantly keep in mind when I am thinking about the values in America 10, 50 and 100 years from now.

Today, our preparations to meet this unprincipled communistic force are upsetting our economy. Girding our loins costs billions of dollars.

From the time of the first World War to the present, the financing of such a struggle as we are now engaged in has set in motion inflationary forces. As recently as 1932 our national debt was less than 20-billion dollars.

It is now $263,000,000,000! Dare one look ahead to 1962 and 1972? Will communism quiet down and become peaceful? Of course not. It is out to wreck everything and everybody that is not now under its control.

Facing such a future, our own domestic economy must be kept strong. We cannot countenance governmental inefficiency, waste and extravagance. As I pointed out last week, the productive capacity of America is enormous. Given a chance, our free enterprise system can turn out the guns and the butter required for such times as these.

But if budgets aren't balanced and taxes made more realistic, then borrowing and more borrowing will follow and the dollar's integrity will further decline.

Lying about the Olympic Games carries a threat to our unit of currency. For it symbolizes a sinister force in the world that has no conscience and no morals.

There is no honor in the Kremlin. Put that down when people feel satisfied with their creature comforts.

Trieste, Aug. 12 (AP)—American occupation troops here got permission today to wear civilian clothes off duty—sometimes—but running around in shirt sleeves is prohibited. A headquarters order allows the soldiers to change into civvies only when visiting the homes of other Americans or British friends. And a coat and tie are mandatory.

Can't See Wrong In Slot Machines If Fines Are Paid

Tracy, Calif., Aug. 12 (AP)—This small city's police judge and police chief said today they see nothing wrong in a former city practice of regularly fining slot machine operators while the slots stayed in action.

Details came to light yesterday in Washington when the U. S. Tax Court ruled that Charles A. Clark, former Tracy slot machine operator, could not deduct the fines from his income for tax purposes.

Clark told the court he used to have an arrangement with the city under which he was allowed to operate the illegal slots, so long as he paid the city $25 a month in fines for each machine.

Clark made the deductions on his income tax returns under the heading of "taxes, licenses, and permits."

But the court, in pointing out that the city did not issue him a permit for his slots and that the machines were illegal in California, called the arrangement a "sham."

$32,225 Paid

Clark, the court said, kept careful records and these revealed that he paid $32,225 in slot machine fines, by check, through the police chief, from the beginning of 1944 through 1946.

There was no dispute today from either Chief of Police E. C. Wyman or Police Court Judge Fen Jackson that the fines had been assessed and paid.

Both declared the fines were "legitimate fines" and went from the police court into the city coffers.

"It was a city policy," said Jackson. "Just one of those things. It got started and grew. Slot machines were knocked over every so often by the police. I'd fine them (the operators) and turn the money over to the city."

$9,000 Every Three Months

Jackson added that the fines levied against Clark and other slot operators netted the city between $7,000 and $9,000 every three months.

Wyman and Jackson agreed that the system was in effect from 1944 to 1946, that it was stopped after the California attorney general "really made slots illegal."

Asked if he knew slot machines were illegal at the time, Wyman said:

"Don't be silly—no comment."

UN Sends Regrets On Overflight

Munsan, Korea, Aug. 12 (AP)—The UN command said today the two or three jet planes which flew over the Panmunjom truce talks site Sunday in violation of its neutrality probably were United Nations planes.

The statement was in a note from Col. Charles W. McCarthy, senior UN command liaison officer, to Col. Chang Chun-san, top Red liaison officer, delivered at Panmunjom in response to a Red protest.

The note said witnesses were unable to observe identifying marks on the planes but "we have concluded in all probability the aircraft in question were those of the United Nations.

"This overflight is regretted. Our side will make continued efforts to prevent occurrences of this kind."

The truce talks are in their third successive weeklong recess. They are scheduled to be resumed Aug. 19.

Meat Balls Combine Pork, Veal

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

These Hungarian meat balls are outstanding. The meat mixture is a combination of ground pork and veal with a hint of grated lemon rind and nutmeg held together with rolled oats. In traditional Hungarian fashion, the meat balls are browned slowly and simmered gently in a rich sour cream sauce.

If chilled in the refrigerator for a while before handling, the meat mixture is easier to form into small meat balls. Much of the preparation can be done ahead of time, up to the point where the balls are cooked in sour cream. The final cooking should be done just before dinnertime to prevent any chance of curdling.

Hungarian Meat Balls
(Makes 6 servings)

Meat Balls: Three-quarters pound ground veal, ¼ pound ground lean pork, ½ cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked), 1 egg, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg.

Sauce: One cup sour clear.

Combine all ingredients for the meat balls. Shape the mixture into small balls and brown in hot fat in a frying pan. When well browned, add sour cream; cover and simmer 20 minutes. Serve over noodles. Sprinkle with a dash of paprika.

Deep Dish Cherry Pudding
(Makes 6 servings)

Fruit Base: One tablespoon cornstarch, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 pint red pitted cherries (No 2 can).

To make fruit base, combine cornstarch, sugar and salt. Drain juice from cherries and add to dry ingredients. Stir well; cook over medium heat until sauce is thickened and clear; stir frequently. Add cherries and pour into 2-quart casserole.

Batter: ¼ cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 1 egg, beaten, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon mace, 1 cup pancake ready-mix.

To make batter, cream shortening; add sugar and egg; combine well. Stir milk and mace into mixture. Add pancake ready-mix. Stir only enough to combine ingredients. Drop by tablespoons over hot cerries; then spread batter to distribute evenly over surface.

Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes, or until surface is firm. Serve warm.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Blackberries, puffed rice, soft-cooked eggs, toasted English muffins, butter or margarine, jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Creamed dried beef over corn meal muffins, fresh or frozen peas, sliced oranges and bananas, tea, milk.

DINNER: Chilled tomato juice, Hungarian meat balls on noodles, toasted garlic bread, mixed green salad, French dressing, deep-dish cherry pudding, iced coffee, milk.

Patrolman Shot During Argument

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—Patrolman James J. McGillion, 35, was shot and seriously wounded on a Harlem sidewalk at 3 a. m. today (EST).

Recovering consciousness at Knickerbocker Hospital, he told fellow officers he was shot while attempting to stop an argument between two Negroes.

He said one of the Negroes drew a gun when he identified himself. McGillion drew his own gun and the man fired, grabbing McGillion's revolver.

The two men fled, and the policeman followed them until he collapsed, he said.

At Least 10 Are Killed

Berlin, Aug. 12 (AP)—At least 10 persons were killed last Saturday as the result of an explosion in the Soviet zone Baltic resort of Ahlbeck, the West Berlin newspaper Telegraf reported today. The accident occurred, the report said, during the celebration of the resort's 100th anniversary when a steel container of gas used to fill children's toy balloons exploded. The incident could not be confirmed by West Berlin authorities.

The Soviets, in their propaganda press, are saying they won the Olympic games. They go into no details; but, following their claims of past years of invention and discovery, they run true to form in boasting of their athletic prowess.

America walloped them terribly in everything in which we competed with them. And an interesting observation of this competition is that there was a good spirit of friendship between the Russian and American athletes.

I am led to say that there is no wide gap between the character of the Russian citizen and his American counterpart. The United States basketball team played Russia twice during the Olympics and, at the end of our second victory, the star of the Soviets and one of our leading players posed for the cameramen and between them they held a Finnish enthusiast.

The Soviet political dynasty, whose power centers in the Kremlin, is responsible for these deliberate lies. It is a cruel thing when millions upon millions of people live under a tyrannical gang. When lies about athletic prowess are published, one gets an idea of the kind of world we face. Purges, slave labor camps, murder, bearing false witness—these are Soviet commonplaces.

Has communism and sound moral and ethical foundations? I doubt it. Lying about sports is unpardonable. But communism will stoop to anything to get its way.

When will this slave labor-free man controversy resolve itself? What will it cost in principles, in lives and in money? Nobody knows. But resolve itself it will. And every man, woman and child in America is involved in this struggle.

In sports our best athletes meet the best Russians. The natural and normal camaraderie between the contestants is later poisoned by the wicked Kremlin rules and their captive stooges. The perpetrators of this deceit are the biggest double-crossers in history.

The social, moral and ethical and economic foundations of the world have a common base. What happens in one place will occur in another. That is what I constantly keep in mind when I am thinking about the values in America 10, 50 and 100 years from now.

Today, our preparations to meet this unprincipled communistic force are upsetting our economy. Girding our loins costs billions of dollars.

From the time of the first World War to the present, the financing of such a struggle as we are now engaged in has set in motion inflationary forces. As recently as 1932 our national debt was less than 20-billion dollars.

It is now $263,000,000,000! Dare one look ahead to 1962 and 1972? Will communism quiet down and become peaceful? Of course not. It is out to wreck everything and everybody that is not now under its control.

Facing such a future, our own domestic economy must be kept strong. We cannot countenance governmental inefficiency, waste and extravagance. As I pointed out last week, the productive capacity of America is enormous. Given a chance, our free enterprise system can turn out the guns and the butter required for such times as these.

But if budgets aren't balanced and taxes made more realistic, then borrowing and more borrowing will follow and the dollar's integrity will further decline.

Lying about the Olympic Games carries a threat to our unit of currency. For it symbolizes a sinister force in the world that has no conscience and no morals.

Ethiopians Like to Kiss

Cairo (AP) — Ethiopians are the world's greatest kissers. This is the conclusion of an observer who recently visited Ethiopia. Men and women, meeting on the streets, kiss one another three times on the right and left cheeks. There is much mouth kissing, too. Kissing of walls around churches, and even the pavement and ground in front of churches, is widely practiced. Foreign doctors frown on these common kissing habits, warning that they can further spread syphilis, which already is widespread in Ethiopia.

The British Empire is responsible for more than a quarter of the world's food supply, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Britons Like Foreign Art

London (AP) — British composer Vaughan Williams says Britons are "artistic snobs" because they go for foreign art instead of the home-grown variety. Williams told a folk music congress in London the British "can't believe any artistic effort is good unless it comes from another country. We get all our painting from France, all our music from Germany, and all our dances from America."

Bus Hunts Up Passengers

Centralia, Ill. (AP) — Bus driver Ralph Shook is the answer to prayers for all late commuters. Street repairs blocked Shook's run one morning, forcing him to turn onto a detour although he spotted two regular riders down the street. He wheeled the bus around the block to reach them, but they were gone. "Maybe they went back home," Shook told passengers. "Anyone know where they live?" Someone did. Shook drove to the front of their house and honked. Two surprised fares came out and boarded the off-beat bus.

BOOK REVIEW

To further increase interest in the Kingston Library the following review by Mrs. G. Cramer Dodge is published.

PROMISED LAND
by Joan Lowell

A captain of a luxury liner plying between New York and South America finds in one of his passengers the answer to his dream of a perfect companion for a life of adventure in a frontier jungle, and asks her, Joan Lowell, to share the adventure with him.

To prove that she can be a good pioneer wife, Joan very soon after returning to New York, goes back to Brazil on a one-way ticket and proceeds to try living alone on a remote beach for three months while the captain winds up his affairs with the steamship company before joining her.

Her experience of life on the beach, building a shack with the help of natives, learning from them to use the gifts of nature for her needs. Drinking from the milk vine which grows where no water is available, which plants to use for food, for medicine, for beauty treatments. Her fat neighbor, Josefa, possesses knowledge of survival far beyond that learned from books and passes it on to Joan. She shows her the easy way to prepare a garden plot for planting is simply to tether two pigs on the plot and let them root up and fertilize the soil. She tells her how to get rid of chicken lice—permanently, and adds sage advice about how to hold this man Joan plans to marry. She voiced her doubt about this promise to marry. "No woman's got a man unless she has got him with her," says she.

However Joan did stick it out for three months and to her surprise found herself, thanks to Josefa, operating a small clinic for the sick who came to her and even presided at a birth—more or less efficiently. Then although tempted by glittering offers from the steamship company, Captain Bowen did come to the beach hut to claim his bride. After a brief honeymoon the captain was asked by a group of real estate operators to build a road for them to their rich inland acres. Promises were made of monthly payments to cover expenses and at the end a reward of thousands of acres of land.

That was when Joan and the captain bit off a huge hunk of trouble. The expected funds didn't come, their help, while loyal was entirely untrained in road-building. Almost insurmountable obstacles loomed up. Vicious criminals ruined a large stretch of finished road to prevent the law from reaching their hideouts. Supplies were meager, they grew gaunt from hunger and haggard from hard, unremitting toil but the Captain kept on doggedly adding miles to the road while Joan learned to make immediate use of every bit of frontier knowledge gleaned from homesteaders who constantly stopped at the camp. She learned to obtain yeast, flour, soap and nearly everything else that they needed for nourishment and medication, except salt, from the vegetation at hand. She had trouble raising "she" fruit-bearing papaya trees. Until they were full grown she could not determine their sex. Complained about it to her husband. His reply, "Why don't you lift up their leaves and look underneath?" At least they kept their sense of humor and needed it.

Joan's most outstanding achievement was the making the plaster for the walls of their camp home. Frontier women told her that she could make perfect, strong plaster by mixing equal parts of clay, ant hill and fresh cow dung with your bare feet, then apply to woven bamboo walls. Joan followed instructions to the letter and obtained a fine hard wall and odorless.

Joan tellls it all in a most interesting manner. You'll learn about monkey spies, who guard a band of monkey corn stealers, and the Tanagra, known as the orchestra bird because they sing in unison to the wing-beat of a leader. Her raising of foxhounds and the deals made with the litters of pups. What she called the donkey named "My Heart" after a hard, bumpy ride on her back.

She even kept her stubborn little chin up after a most crushing blow which swept away their promised acreage, leaving them landless and penniless, just as the road was nearly completed. How they got out of that and won through to relative prosperity and peace is a little story of heroism in itself.

You don't need to travel when a book like this can bring far lands to you.

Exhibit Is Review Of 18th Century Life Along Hudson

A vivid, fascinating and historical story depicting the social customs, mode of dress, spectacular events, people and places concurrent with the first half of the 19th century and in some instances, much earlier dates, is portrayed in the carefully selected pictures now on exhibition at the George Washington School on Washington avenue. A special feature of the city's 300th anniversary celebration, the show will continue daily through Sunday, Aug. 17.

Unique and Entertaining

In spite of its 300 years, the city has never before and may never again have the privilege of presenting such a unique and varied exhibition. It has as much appeal to the laymen as to the student and professional artist because of its wide diversification. Already persons from all parts of the country have journeyed here not only to study the subjects and techniques, but for the sheer entertainment it offers.

The exhibition comprises 77 pictures loaned by the noted collector, Maxim Karolik; The Robert C. Vose Galleries; Albany Institute of History and Art; The Metropolitan Museum of Art, Art Museum, Raleigh, N. C., Mrs. Nelson Conant, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lowell; Mrs. James P. Borland, Mrs. William Hasbrouck, Edward Fenton, Fred J. Johnston, and others.

Preview for Visitors

As an introductory preview for the fortunate visitor to the exhibition, the top left photo will be found in the group loaned by the Albany Institute of History and Art. "Judge Van Aernam in His Sleigh" was painted by Van Zandt. The judge is said to have lived in Troy, although this picture is signed "Albany." It colorfully depicts winter sports activities in Albany in the 1850's and includes hunters, skaters and men racing their horses. Since there were several Van Zandt's working in the Albany region in the 19th century, it is not certain which one did this painting.

"The America" by James Bard, (top right) is also an Albany Institute loan. Bard was considered the ablest of the painters of steamboats. From the age of 12, he made paintings of almost every steamer. His tendency was to make figures larger than they should have been. He was also overly generous with flags. Five of his paintings are also on exhibition in the Senate House Museum.

Rip Van Winkle Series

The Rip Van Winkle stories have been favorites and will be quickly recalled by the series of four paintings by A. D. O. Browere from the Maxim Karolik collection. "Rip Van Winkle at the Inn" (center left) depicts Rip at the Old Village Inn which was one of his relaxing spots. Here, he spent many a lazy hour while Madame Winkle worked herself into a frenzy. The artist Browere was born in 1814 in Tarrytown but later became a resident of Catskill. He died in 1887.

Popular Pastime

The Quilting Party (center right) was painted by an unknown artist (1840-50) and is on loan from the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The brilliant primary colors and lively gestures portray the 19th century social pastime as extremely expressive. The straight lines and sharp angles of beams, floor boards, and window frames prevent the larger number of figures from becoming too confusing a mass of amorphous shapes.

Advertising Pays

The portrait of Warren Crosby (bottom left) was painted by William Matthew Prior (1806-1873). Born in Bath, Me., he took up the profession of portrait painting at an early age. Advertisements for his work include such statements as "side views and profiles of children at reduced prices" and "persons wishing a flat picture can have likeness without shade or shadow at one-quarter price." It will be noted that Warren Crosby's father was able to afford a portrait complete with shade and shadow.

Prior's portraits are considered to be above the rank and file of the so-called primitives. He was one of the rare painters who thoroughly documented his works as to subject, author and date.

Vanderlyn's Marius

Marius on the Ruins of Carthage (bottom center) was painted by John Vanderlyn, born in this city in 1775. He died in 1852. A larger version of this work was painted in Rome in 1807 and won Napoleon's gold medal awarded to the best original work submitted to the Louvre for the Salon of 1808. The painting in the local exhibition is supposed to be the smaller replica done for Asher Durand, the engraver. It is signed and dated 1832, 25 years later than the famous original which is now in California.

The artist's interest was to illustrate the ephemeral nature of human grandeur.

Gaius Marius, (155-186 B.C.) the subject for the work, was one of the most distinguished Roman generals and seven times a consul. Defeated by his rival, Sylla, and condemned to death, he fled Rome. Upon reaching Africa where he landed amid the ruins of Carthage, he received a message from the governor which forbade him to set foot on African soil.

For many years, John Vanderlyn studied and painted in Europe where he achieved a considerable reputation as an exponent of historical painting. Upon returning to America, his efforts to establish a demand for the intellectually fashionable tone-filled incidents of Greek and Roman history failed because patrons demanded more objective portraits of their own faces, and those of nature in her many moods.

Marius has evoked so much interest on the part of visitors to the show who desire to see more of John Vanderlyn's work, it might be well to mention that the Senate House Museum houses the largest collection of this outstanding local artist's historical paintings.

Smug and Complacent

"Baby in a Red Chair," (bottom right), painted about 1790 by an unknown artist, is loaned by the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The smug and complacent infant has considerable charm.

As the exhibition draws to a close, Mrs. Emily C. Chadbourne and Mrs. George V. D. Hutton, co-chairmen, expressed the hope that all county residents who have not yet done so, will avail themselves of this unsual opportunity to enjoy the show which the chairmen, in cooperation with the Tercentennial committee, spent over a year assembling.

Cycle Throws Hero

Flensburg, Germany, Aug. 12 (AP)—Capt. Kurt Carlsen came through unscathed from his storm-tossed ordeal with his sinking Flying Enterprise, but he didn't do as well with a motorcycle last night. The two-wheeler skidded and turned over, and the brave little skipper broke his collarbone. Police reported that the sea hero was on his way by motorcycle from Copenhagen to Rotterdam when the accident happened.

Woodstock Clinic

A child health conference conducted by the Ulster County Health Department will be held at the health center in Woodstock on August 20 from 2 to 4 p. m. These clinics are limited to infant and preschool children for the administering of immunizations for smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough. These are well child clinics for the maintenance of health and prevention of disease, not for the care of the sick child.

BOOK REVIEW

To further increase interest in the Kingston Library the following review by Mrs. G. Cramer Dodge is published.

PROMISED LAND
by Joan Lowell

A captain of a luxury liner plying between New York and South America finds in one of his passengers the answer to his dream of a perfect companion for a life of adventure in a frontier jungle, and asks her, Joan Lowell, to share the adventure with him.

To prove that she can be a good pioneer wife, Joan very soon after returning to New York, goes back to Brazil on a one-way ticket and proceeds to try living alone on a remote beach for three months while the captain winds up his affairs with the steamship company before joining her.

Her experience of life on the beach, building a shack with the help of natives, learning from them to use the gifts of nature for her needs. Drinking from the milk vine which grows where no water is available, which plants to use for food, for medicine, for beauty treatments. Her fat neighbor, Josefa, possesses knowledge of survival far beyond that learned from books and passes it on to Joan. She shows her the easy way to prepare a garden plot for planting is simply to tether two pigs on the plot and let them root up and fertilize the soil. She tells her how to get rid of chicken lice—permanently, and adds sage advice about how to hold this man Joan plans to marry. She voiced her doubt about this promise to marry. "No woman's got a man unless she has got him with her," says she.

However Joan did stick it out for three months and to her surprise found herself, thanks to Josefa, operating a small clinic for the sick who came to her and even presided at a birth—more or less efficiently. Then although tempted by glittering offers from the steamship company, Captain Bowen did come to the beach hut to claim his bride. After a brief honeymoon the captain was asked by a group of real estate operators to build a road for them to their rich inland acres. Promises were made of monthly payments to cover expenses and at the end a reward of thousands of acres of land.

That was when Joan and the captain bit off a huge hunk of trouble. The expected funds didn't come, their help, while loyal was entirely untrained in road-building. Almost insurmountable obstacles loomed up. Vicious criminals ruined a large stretch of finished road to prevent the law from reaching their hideouts. Supplies were meager, they grew gaunt from hunger and haggard from hard, unremitting toil but the Captain kept on doggedly adding miles to the road while Joan learned to make immediate use of every bit of frontier knowledge gleaned from homesteaders who constantly stopped at the camp. She learned to obtain yeast, flour, soap and nearly everything else that they needed for nourishment and medication, except salt, from the vegetation at hand. She had trouble raising "she" fruit-bearing papaya trees. Until they were full grown she could not determine their sex. Complained about it to her husband. His reply, "Why don't you lift up their leaves and look underneath?" At least they kept their sense of humor and needed it.

Joan's most outstanding achievement was the making the plaster for the walls of their camp home. Frontier women told her that she could make perfect, strong plaster by mixing equal parts of clay, ant hill and fresh cow dung with your bare feet, then apply to woven bamboo walls. Joan followed instructions to the letter and obtained a fine hard wall and odorless.

Joan tellls it all in a most interesting manner. You'll learn about monkey spies, who guard a band of monkey corn stealers, and the Tanagra, known as the orchestra bird because they sing in unison to the wing-beat of a leader. Her raising of foxhounds and the deals made with the litters of pups. What she called the donkey named "My Heart" after a hard, bumpy ride on her back.

She even kept her stubborn little chin up after a most crushing blow which swept away their promised acreage, leaving them landless and penniless, just as the road was nearly completed. How they got out of that and won through to relative prosperity and peace is a little story of heroism in itself.

You don't need to travel when a book like this can bring far lands to you.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

By EMILY POST

(Author of 'Etiquette,' 'Children Are People,' etc.)

"AWFULLY"—THE CRASHER

A reader explains: "The other day I made the remark that something was 'awfully nice' and immediately my friend started to laugh and said how could anything be awful and nice at the same time. I have heard this expression many times and thought it was perfectly all right. Will you please tell me if it is wrong so that I will not say it again."

If you analyze it, it is not correct English but because of constant use it has long had its place in the American vernacular.

If She Likes It

Dear Mrs. Post: Two or three years ago a friend of mine, on giving up her apartment, presented me with several pieces of household equipment for which she had no further use. Among these things was a piece of china which I know she prized. Recently she married. Should I offer to return these things to her—particularly the china, or would I be likely to offend her?

Answer: If she gave the china to you because she could not then use it and now can, I think it would be only right to offer to give it back.

Use Title

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct when answering a telephone in a business office and asked who is speaking, to say "This is Mr. Jones?" or should it be simply "Jones," or perhaps "This is John Jones?" In short, is it correct to use the title Mr. and Miss before your name?

Answer: In this situation, both "Miss" and "Mr." are correct.

Using Handwork

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it good taste to use a hand-crocheted table cloth on my dining table for informal dinners? If so, what kind of napkins should I use with it?

Answer: A crocheted table cloth is not correct for dinner but it would be for lunch or supper. For napkins you might crochet a little matching edge around small squares of heavy linen.

When friends are invited to ride in your car, how should they be seated? Should a gentleman remove his hat in the elevator? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-15 includes answers to these questions. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Eisenhower Says president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Newsmen questioned Eisenhower about his conference with eight members of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees.

"We found ourselves in very general agreement." The general declared.

Not Stating in Advance

He added that a statement issued by the law-makers would speak for him, saying, "I'm not stating in advance of the campaign my own particular ideas."

The congressmen said in their statement that Eisenhower "is going to present positive, forward looking farm policies." They outlined no specific farm policy. One, however, Sen. Milton R. Young (R.-N. Dak.), said Eisenhower told them he favors continuing some form of price supports for farm products.

For peace, Eisenhower declared the need is for "something positive and constructive." The world situation will, he added, "deteriorate without a postive approach."

The general said, "I'm not going to put myself in a position of being a Messiah but I think the Republican party can do the better job."

He called for "a fresh new approach to the whole problem" and said that is one reason "for changing the whole works" of the national administration.

He stressed that he wants to build the Republican party but said that on November election ballots "Democratic X's make just as big marks as any others."

Stevenson Might

President ought to defer to the nominee.

One campaign official who asked not to be quoted by name said he thought Truman ought to let Stevenson get a running start on his drive before the President makes any appearances at all.

This official said he is suggesting that Truman's greatest contribution might come in his assurances to people in the populous northern states that Stevenson will carry on his civil rights program if elected.

Thinks He Could Help

Sen. James Murray of Montana said he believes Truman could help Stevenson with a public power speech in the west.

"The President is popular in our country and it would be a mistake if he doesn't campaign for Stevenson," Murray said. "He doesn't have to undertake a whistle-stop campaign but he ought to give his fullest cooperation to the nominee."

Some Republicans have been contending that Stevenson is the "captive candidate" of the Truman administration, but Sen. Ralph E. Flanders (R.-Vt.) told a reporter he takes no stock in that.

Flanders, who is supporting the GOP nominee, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, said he regards Stevenson as " a damn good man," but added he will have to fight for the right to run his own political show.

"In my estimation," Flanders said, "Stevenson quite obviously is embarrassed by efforts of the President to grab hold of his coattails and also do the steering."

Arrival Is Awaited

Amman, Jordan, Aug. 12 (AP)—The Middle East Kingdom of Jordan prepared today to welcome its third king in just over a year and awaited his arrival to settle the future of his royal father-predecessor and of the country's government. Parliament dethroned mentally-ill King Talal I yesterday and proclaimed his 17-year-old son as King Hussein I. A court envoy left for Switzerland, where the schoolboy Hussein is vacationing with his mother, Queen Zeine, and two brothers. In Lausanne, a Swiss official said the royal family would leave for Amman on Sunday.

Mrs. Mooney Dies

San Francisco, Aug. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Rena Ellen Mooney, the music teacher widow of militant unionist Tom Mooney and who fought for 23 years to get him released from prison after the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, died yesterday. She was 74. Mrs. Mooney, who along with her husband was catapulted into international notice after Mooney was convicted of murder, died in virtual obscurity. Her body was found near an ironing board by a roomer in her San Francisco home.

Instrument Recovered

The surveying instrument stolen from a tool shed on the high school building project over the week-end, was recovered last night. The item, known as a dumpy level, is valued at $500, and was found in a wooden box in some weeds near the MJM school by Gloria Benjamin, 13, of 21 Staples street, according to a police report at 6:45 p. m., yesterday. Charles Vogel of the Colonial Construction Co., reported the theft yesterday morning. Detective Clarence Brophy investigated.

Prison population of the United States is estimated at between 400,000 and 500,000.

Heat Wave Covers Southwestern Area

(By The Associated Press)

An August heat wave baked most of Texas and parts of the southwest today while relatively cool weather spread across the central portion of the nation.

The mercury vaulted to 109 degrees yesterday in Presidio, Tex., and Phoenix and Yuma, Ariz., and the U. S. Weather Bureau in Chicago said more 100-plus was in store for the same areas today.

A puny cool wave pushed just across the Texas-Oklahoma border and then stalled. Cloudy skies and possible showers offered the only hope of relief for parts of northern Texas. Continued hot was in prospect for the rest of the state.

Additions Are Made

The Agriculture Department, meanwhile, added New Hampshire and parts of Oklahoma and Illinois to its drouth disaster area. This enables farmers in those sections to obtain government loans to buy seed and feed.

Other states in the area include Maine, Massachusetts, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi and parts of Missouri.

Cooler weather covered the upper Great Lakes, the middle and upper Mississippi valleys and most of the plains states. Warmer weather was reported in New England and Montana.

Showers sprinkled the lower lakes region southwestward through the Ohio and middle Mississippi valley to the Central Plains states. There also were scattered showers along the Gulf states and in the central and southern Rockies.

Selection Approved

Taipeh, Formosa, Aug. 12 (AP)—Newspaper reports said today the Japanese government has approved the selection of Dr. Hollington K. Tong as Nationalist Chinese Ambassador to Japan. The Nationalist government may confirm the approval tomorrow after the weekly cabinet meeting.

ers in drouth areas. It put all New Hampshire, 10 additional counties in Oklahoma and seven in Illinois in the "disaster" classification.

Farmers in such areas may obtain loans from the department's Farmers' Home Administration to carry on operations. Only those who have suffered substantial losses from the drouth and who are unable to obtain credit elsewhere will be eligible for aid.

The department previously had designated all or parts of 11 states as drouth disaster areas.

Should weather conditions be more favorable during the rest of the season, drouth-affected states might well achieve a degree of recovery. The department said rains early this month have tended to break the drouth and should revive pastures and encourage farmers to plant late forage crops for fall grazing and winter hay.

Winter wheat and rice are the only crops for which record outturns are now expected. But the production of corn, all wheat, cotton, soybeans, tobacco, sugarcane, hops, grapes, cherries and plums will be larger than average.

Below average crops include oats, barley, rye, flaxseed, sorghum grain, hay, dry beans, peanuts, potatoes, sweet potatoes, sugar beets, and most fruits. But no pinches in consumer supplies of these crops and their byproducts are indicated.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

By EMILY POST

(Author of 'Etiquette,' 'Children Are People,' etc.)

"AWFULLY"—THE CRASHER

A reader explains: "The other day I made the remark that something was 'awfully nice' and immediately my friend started to laugh and said how could anything be awful and nice at the same time. I have heard this expression many times and thought it was perfectly all right. Will you please tell me if it is wrong so that I will not say it again."

If you analyze it, it is not correct English but because of constant use it has long had its place in the American vernacular.

If She Likes It

Dear Mrs. Post: Two or three years ago a friend of mine, on giving up her apartment, presented me with several pieces of household equipment for which she had no further use. Among these things was a piece of china which I know she prized. Recently she married. Should I offer to return these things to her—particularly the china, or would I be likely to offend her?

Answer: If she gave the china to you because she could not then use it and now can, I think it would be only right to offer to give it back.

Use Title

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct when answering a telephone in a business office and asked who is speaking, to say "This is Mr. Jones?" or should it be simply "Jones," or perhaps "This is John Jones?" In short, is it correct to use the title Mr. and Miss before your name?

Answer: In this situation, both "Miss" and "Mr." are correct.

Using Handwork

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it good taste to use a hand-crocheted table cloth on my dining table for informal dinners? If so, what kind of napkins should I use with it?

Answer: A crocheted table cloth is not correct for dinner but it would be for lunch or supper. For napkins you might crochet a little matching edge around small squares of heavy linen.

When friends are invited to ride in your car, how should they be seated? Should a gentleman remove his hat in the elevator? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-15 includes answers to these questions. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, c/o The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Eisenhower Says

president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Newsmen questioned Eisenhower about his conference with eight members of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees.

Not Stating in Advance

He added that a statement issued by the law-makers would speak for him, saying, "I'm not stating in advance of the campaign my own particular ideas."

The congressmen said in their statement that Eisenhower "is going to present positive, forward looking farm policies." They outlined no specific farm policy. One, however, Sen. Milton R. Young (R.-N. For peace, Eisenhower declared the need is for "something positive and constructive." The world situation will, he added, "deteriorate without a postive approach."

Says Ike Leaves Party High and Dry on Economy

Boston, Aug. 12 (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam said today General Eisenhower left the majority of Republican congressmen "high and dry" when he favored lower prices and lower taxes.

Putman spoke at the 66th annual convention of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor.

The economic boss said in a prepared address that 75 per cent of the Republicans in the House voted in favor of an amendment to end all price controls. "That vote was a vote for more inflation, for higher prices, for cheaper dollars, for less real income," Putnam declared.

"And now General Eisenhower would have us believe that his party stands for lower prices and lower taxes. It's very possible, of course, that a man who has devoted his lifetime to military matters should be unversed in civilian affairs. But it's a little surprising  that a candidate should leave so many of his party's congressmen high and dry on the matter of prices."

Calls Task Impossible

Putnam said Eisenhower, before the Chicago convention, "came out in favor of elimination of our direct economic controls. Then in a speech at Los Angeles last week, this same general said he proposed to save American people from the double toll of high prices and high taxes."

"It's going to be somewhat of a feat to lower prices and end controls at one and the same time," Putnam said. "Even if the gentleman in question exchanges the swagger stick of the general for the wand of a magician, his task will be impossible.

"It's not at all surprising to me that a Republican candidate should talk out of both sides of his mouth during a campaign year."

Arranging Health Teacher Course

At a recent meeting of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, the board of directors voted to appropriate Christmas Seals funds to the amount of $400 to the mental health committee. According to Edward F. Shea, M.D., chairman, this money will be used to supplement the cost of a study course for Ulster county teachers.

Administrators and mental health committee members learned about this program during the administration conference held in May at Williams Lake. Dr. Daniel Prescott, psychologist of the University of Maryland who conducts these programs, explained the course as one in helping teachers figure out children. Many of these study groups are being conducted throughout the U. S. Ulster county administrators expressed a keen interest in the program.

All county boards of education were contacted and invited to share with the mental health committee the sponsorship and cost of this program. Each study group will be made up of groups of 8 to 10 teachers in a school or from a district. The committee plans to complete arrangements with all boards very soon so that a request for the study course can be made to Dr. Prescott for the county program in the fall. The Kingston Board of Education and several others in the county have already signified their intention to join the group.

Teen-agers Held In Harrelson Case

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—Two teen-agers with delinquency records have confessed, police say, to the murder of a Brooklyn Heights man in an attempted holdup.

The accused pair, Henry Agard, 16, and Anthony Simo, 17, both of Brooklyn, were booked on homicide charges last night.

They were seized yesterday in the shooting of Marcus B. Harrelson, 26.

Harrelson was fatally wounded after he got out of bed and answered the doorbell of his apartment last Friday night. He told police before he died that two youths had tried to rob him, and he furnished descriptions. Other descriptions came from Harrelson's roommate, Gilbert B. Follansbee, and from neighbors who saw the youths flee.

Fifty detectives made a house-to-house search of a wide area before catching up to the two prisoners.

Police quoted the youths as saying the shooting was accidental as Harrelson, a stock clerk, grappled with Agard when he saw the gun.

$10,000 Bail Is Placed On Woman for Safety

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—A 20-year-old woman accussed of being the madam of a plush house of prostitution is being held in high bail here to protect her from "several unsavory characters."

Joan Harris, alias Joan Hobbs and Joan Haas, was arrested in St. Louis last Thursday after police received court permission to tap the telephone in an apartment she rented here.

Brought back to New York by a detective, Miss Harris appeared in night court last night. She was held in $10,000 bail when Assistant District Attorney Anthony J. Lieber said that "she is surrounded by several unsavory characters" and that she might be harmed if allowed to go free.

He said a July 16 raid by police netted an address book with the names of many men and the prices they had paid to women in the apartment.

More Sessions Set To Avert Strike

New York, Aug. 12 (AP)—Federal mediators called more sessions today in efforts to avert a strike on New York Central Railroad lines east of Buffalo.

The mediators held separate talks with representatives of the unions and of the railroad yesterday and last night.

There was no comment by the mediators on results of the opening day's sessions.

The dispute concerns 58 union claims and grievances over working rules.

The strike, threatened off and on for more than a week, has been postponed indefinitely by three railroad brotherhoods at the request of the National Mediation Board.

The three unions are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Order of Railway Conductors.

May Cut 20-Week Pay Requirement

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12 (AP) — The joint legislative committee on unemployment insurance may suggest a reduction in the present 20-week work requirement for jobless benefits.

That was indicated yesterday by the vice chairman, Republican Assemblyman Ray S. Ashberry of Trumansburg. He said in a statement that "we hope to bring the next legislature recommendations which will be fair and equitable to all concerned."

Under the state unemployment insurance law, a claimant must have worked during part of at least 20 weeks in the preceding 52-week period to be eligible for benefits.

The requirement has drawn fire from labor groups and others who contend it deprives many seasonal workers of unemployment benefits through no fault of their own.

AUGUST 2nd THRU 15th

HOW SCOUTING IS FINANCED

It is the policy of the Boy Scouts of America that the program be financed by public subscription from the people of the area in which the program is to be made effective. Only once a year is the opportunity of this investment in the boys of a community given to the citizens of that community. Since there is no other source of income it is necessary to secure sufficient money in the Annual Campaign for funds to make possible and to maintain the administration of the Council for the year. The money received is used to help interested institutions properly organize Packs, Troops, and Explorer groups to insure permanency; to obtain trained professional Executives in guiding the movement and interpreting policies; office service to units and institutions; to publish bulletins, periodicals and other literature to help leaders; for the training of leaders through organized courses in all phases of the Scouting Program; for the development of District Committees to make Scouting available to all boys; for the organization, training and guidance of a Commissioner Staff to service Troops, Packs and Explorer Units; for the organization and direction of inter-Unit activities through the Commissioner Staff; for regular Courts of Honor and Boards of Review which makes possible the Advancement Program of Scouting; for the privilege and opportunity of attending a Supervised Camp that has been specifically developed to insure a safe, wholesome and worthwhile Scouting experience for every Scout and Explorer.

Broadway Theatre Will Have Four Stage Attractions

Booking of the new Slavenska-Franklin Ballet Company for its New Jersey and New York Theatres in October was announced today by the Walter Reade Theatres, giving the circuit a line up of four top-calibre stage attractions for its motion picture theatres this fall and early winter.

The circuit will lead off with the Theatre Guild's production of Oklahoma in early September; follow it in late September with the prize winning play Mr. Roberts; the Ballet in October; and the Trapp Family Singers in December.

The engagements represent a continuation of the circuit's policy of booking top quality stage attractions as they become available. The line-up of four attractions marks the greatest concentration of stage presentations the circuit has been able to assemble to date, and the first time it has been able to achieve this continuity.

Rodgers and Hammerstein's Oklahoma will open with a two-day engagement, Sept. 1 and 2, at the Broadway Theatre in Kingston.

Mr. Roberts, the Leland Hayward prize-winning play which had a two-year Broadway run with Henry Fonda in the title role, will play the Broadway Theatre in Kingston.

Booking of the new Ballet company was confirmed today. Headed by the former Ballet Russe stars Mia Slavenska and Frederic Franklin, the new company includes 50 dancers plus a full symphony orchestra, and features the great ballerina Alexandra Danilova as guest artist. The company had a highly successful debut at New York's Lewisohn Stadium July 22, and won unanimous acclaim from New York's critics.

The company will play at the Broadway Theatre in Kingston Sunday, Oct. 26.

The Trapp Family Singers, one of the most famous folk song units in the world, will appear at the Broadway Theatre in Kingston Wednesday, Dec. 17.

Broadway Theatre Will Have Four Stage Attractions

Booking of the new Slavenska-Franklin Ballet Company for its New Jersey and New York Theatres in October was announced today by the Walter Reade Theatres, giving the circuit a line up of four top-calibre stage attractions for its motion picture theatres this fall and early winter.

The circuit will lead off with the Theatre Guild's production of Oklahoma in early September; follow it in late September with the prize winning play Mr. Roberts; the Ballet in October; and the Trapp Family Singers in December.

The engagements represent a continuation of the circuit's policy of booking top quality stage attractions as they become available. The line-up of four attractions marks the greatest concentration of stage presentations the circuit has been able to assemble to date, and the first time it has been able to achieve this continuity.

Rodgers and Hammerstein's Oklahoma will open with a two-day engagement, Sept. 1 and 2, at the Broadway Theatre in Kingston.

Mr. Roberts, the Leland Hayward prize-winning play which had a two-year Broadway run with Henry Fonda in the title role, will play the Broadway Theatre in Kingston.

Booking of the new Ballet company was confirmed today. Headed by the former Ballet Russe stars Mia Slavenska and Frederic Franklin, the new company includes 50 dancers plus a full symphony orchestra, and features the great ballerina Alexandra Danilova as guest artist. The company had a highly successful debut at New York's Lewisohn Stadium July 22, and won unanimous acclaim from New York's critics.

The company will play at the Broadway Theatre in Kingston Sunday, Oct. 26.

The Trapp Family Singers, one of the most famous folk song units in the world, will appear at the Broadway Theatre in Kingston Wednesday, Dec. 17.

There are 16,000,000 lightning storms a year over the earth.

There was an awful rumpus and threats of a suit for damages in the hotel last night. A vacuum cleaner salesman put on a demonstration on an old rag rug that had been on the floor for years. It started unraveling and just disappeared into the vacuum bag. © NEA

The hearing lasted three and a half hours behind closed doors in the prison ward of Bellevue Hospital's psychiatric division. Findings will be given to General Sessions Judge Paul S. Streit.

Peakes strode up to pretty Eileen Fahey, 18, as she sat behind her secretarial desk in the American Physical Society office on the morning of July 14, and emptied a gun at her.

Arrested in Boston, he said he was angry with the society because it did not publish his electronics theories.

Red Sox Break Tie With Dodgers In Sixth to Win KAA Game, 6-5

Charlie Boice Winning Pitcher

Charlie Boice, the Red Sox flinger, was within three outs of his third KAA Little League shutout yesterday when the Dodgers staged a spectacular sixth inning rally that netted five runs to create a 5-5 tie.

But a moment later, Boice's teammates made quick work of southpaw Glenn Newell for the marker that gave them a 6-5 decision and a 4-1 record in the second half standings.

Boice pitched brilliantly through five innings and appeared to have the situation well in hand, when big Jim Volker slammed a three-run homer over the left field fence. The big blow tied the score and brought on Newell, the slick little southpaw in the bottom half of the sixth.

VanEtten Stars

The Red Sox were no respecters of reputations. Tom Van Etten whaled an outside pitch into deep right field for his second double of the game. He took third on a wild pitch and scored on Tom Hallinan's fly to right field.

Boice gave up only six hits, walked four and struck out five. Charlie Williams, the Dodger third sacker, had a pair including a double.

The meat of the Red Sox batting order—Boice, Jim Cullum and Tom Van Etten—accounted for eight of the 12 hits off starter George Uhl and Newell.

Van Etten rapped two doubles and a single and Boice stroked a double and two singles. Jimmy Cullum and Frank Weishaupt also had a pair of safeties.

The Red Sox triumph resolved the second half pennant chase into a two-team struggle between the Sox and the Yankees. The clubs are tied in the lost column with one setback apiece. The Giants with three losses and Dodgers with four are virtually eliminated, although they will have much to say about the final standings.

The Yankees are scheduled against the Giants today and the Dodgers on Friday. The Red Sox have a date with the Giants on Thursday.

Sixty-three of our good golfing citizens, who had every intention of holing out when they stepped to the Freeman Hole-in-One tee, missed the green completely with all five shots. Wiltwyck Golf Club tries its new style championship finals this weekend and it should result in a new peak of club interest.

Our tournament chairmen, hard working and sincere as they are, have yet to eliminate the one real bogey in a championship tournament—getting matches played off on time. Except in case of extreme emergencies the match should be treated as a solemn obligation on the part of the contestants. There are too many weak excuses tossed around by players who can't or won't meet scheduled commitments. Already this season we have had an example of high class skullduggery in a match involving two "name" players. And you must remember that delightful rhubarb involving a former city finalist a few years ago.

• Putt and Take:

As a former baseball player accustomed to the barbed repartee from rival dugouts, especially at Saugerties in "the good old days" we never wanted any part of golf as solemn as burial at sea and as serious as a major operation. We have always felt that solemnity surrounding golf is often exaggerated and over-rated. As a matter of fact, it would be an extreme pleasure to play in a foursome followed around the course by a brass band. Wanted—three volunteers. And maybe we can induce Mike Marchuk, the aspiring golfer, to furnish the music. This would not be a new stunt. Gene Sarazen, one of the most deliberate of golf greats, once played par golf for nine holes with a brass band following in his wake and even tooting sly notes on the trombone when Gene was in the act of putting. Can you think of anything funnier than pulling a sad trombone note just when some crochety old golfer was about to stroke a two-foot putt.

• The Nineteenth Hole:

Did you know that most of the top players in golf history—Walter Hagen, Bobby Jones, Byron Nelson, Lawson Little, Jimmy Demaret and others—were naturally left handed although playing right-handed golf? Does that prove anything about the strong left hand theory? Par-3 holes are those that murder the errant golfer in medal tournaments. The Scylla and Charybdis of golf they have tempted many a golfer into a fiendish desire to throw his clubs into the nearest pool. And what finer example of the par-3 would you want than Twaalfskill's No. 3; the third at Palenville and 8th hole at Wiltwyck; the ninth at Woodstock and Dutchess Country Club's 6th. Woodstock's 9th compares with Wiltwyck's 9th as a great finishing hole and Dutchess' 18th is the easiest. If you think No. 4 at Wiltwyck is ornery, what about No. 7 at Dutchess. And isn't the 4th at James Baird the toughest golf hole, bar none, in these parts?

Frank McCahill, the straight-hitting Irishman, is back on the beam at Woodstock. List Fred Allen of the same club among the great scramblers who are consistently in the 70's. Our own Alvin Boice can do a pretty fair job, too, when he has to. Harvey Bostic's topheavy margin of victory over Bob Daley surprised many of the Wiltwyck railbirds. Rudy, the grand host at the Woodstock Country Club bar, invites you to view the pictorial reproductions of Woodstock's nine holes in the tap room. Frank Walsh, the eminent golf teacher, has devised a new theory of hitting that promises to bring relief to millions of discouraged chronic slicers. The theory is known as "the counter-clockwise turn," and threatens to revolutionize the theory of teaching. Having played twice with both of the gentlemen causes us to wish that Floyd W. Flint and Bob Daley, the Iron Man, might hook up in a 72-hole match, with the attendant repartee tape recorded for posterity. What a delight it would prove for 19th hole gatherings.

Warren Nesbitt, the Ellenville lad who was just a stroke out of contention in the Jaycee state tournament for a berth in the Jaycee Nationals in Seattle had a chance to make the trip to Oregon as an alternate. But it came too late to make proper preparations. Golf continues to be big business in the athletic goods industry. The factory selling prices include excise tax of all golf equipment sold last year was $46,971,306, approximately 40 per cent of all athletic goods sold. Baseball and softball equipment was the second largest item at $26,067,383.. Athletic shoes, including golf shoes, was third at $12,103,461. The principal sales category in golf equipment was clubs. Manufacturers sold 4,030,331 clubs for $24,008,575 and 2,920,340 dozen balls for $18,356,346.

Then there were the two Scots who hooked up in a match under a broiling summer sun. One had a stroke—and the other made him count it.

How These Lassies Can Pound That Pill; Only 53 Runs, 74 Hits and a Triple Play!

The boxscore doesn't exactly "prove" but that must have been quite a softball game between the girls from Hutton Park and the gals from Block Park.

Much to a statistical friend's delight, the Hutton lassies emerged triumphant, 29 to 24, in an extra-inning battle featured by, among lesser items, three home runs, 53 runs, 74 hits and a triple play!

The triple play was as complicated as the May pole dance, going from Kathleen Mayer to Carol Hoffman to Carol Mehm, thence to Helen May Bunt and finally to Mary Agnes Schatzel.

Harriet Ann Diers, Freddy Rice and Betty Schoonmaker, not the golfer-bowler, stroked the home runs.

It took a five-run rally by Block Park in the bottom of the seventh to deadlock the pitcher's duel at 24-24. Hutton came right back with five in the first extra inning.

Selina Rice, the Hutton twirler, permitted 36 enemy hits but she was no piker in her own behalf, slamming seven singles in eight trips to the plate. There were such sundry items as five hits apiece for Florence Rice, Freddy Rice and Beatrice Newkirk, and four each for everybody else. All adding up to 38.

On the other side of the house, the Block Parkers collected 36 hits and Agnes Schatzel had a perfect day with "6 for 6." Helen May Bunt and Harriet Ann Diers got five apiece and nobody went home with less than three.

These murderous swinging gals go at it again real soon for the park championship. Please bring your pencils and a lot of paper.

Quick Comeback

Pittsburgh, Aug. 12 (AP)—Ron Necciai, who was pounded in his major league debut against Chicago last Sunday, bounced back with an impressive relief job last night. The highly-touted rookie hurled three hitless innings against the Reds, striking out five of the 10 batters he faced.

Chicago—Jimmy Martinez, 151, Phoenix, Ariz., outpointed Chuck Foster, 145, Omaha (8).

TIED UP IN TAM GOLF

Cary Middlecoff, the nation's leading money winner, (left), and Julius Boros, 1952 national open champion, are literally all knotted up a cross-hand shake after they tied at 276 in the $90,000 "World" golf championship at Tam O'Shanter, Chicago, August 10. They were scheduled to play off for the $25 000 winner's prize at 18 holes, August 11. The loser will collect $12.500.

Julius Boros Shoots Four-Under-Par 68 To Beat Middlecoff in $25,000 Playoff

Chicago, Aug. 12 (AP) — Golf's golden August visit by Santa Claus in the person of Promoter George S. May could be bigger and better next year than his $120,000 Tam O'Shanter show just closed.

That should be good news to the likes of U. S. Open champion Julius Boros and the golfing dentist, Cary Middlecoff, who yesterday settled for a record $25,000 and $12,500 respectively in a playoff for May's "world championship of Golf."

May said he has dates reserved with the PGA next year for his annual Tam O'Shanter carnival and has in mind an even greater jackpot than he paid in the dovetailed $30,000 All-American and $90,000 "world" the past two weeks.

May plans to increase the $25,000 world first prize and the $3,420 top melon in the All-American. He may even arrange regional playoffs to bring a larger field to the combined meets.

There were reports that Boros, who rallied furiously for his two-stroke, four-under-par 68 playoff victory, and the vanquished Middlecoff had an under-the-table deal to split the world $25,000 first and $12,500 second prizes.

That would have given each $18,750 and the word was out that they had arranged to settle the taxes on the entire $37,500 swag.

But the two players and the PGA denied such a maneuver. The PGA's freshest money-winning list had Boros in front with $34,332, based on a $25,000 first "world" prize and Middlecoff second with $27,739, pegged on second "world" money of $12,500.

The two had finished the 72-hole "world" event Sunday with identical 276's, 12 under par.

Hickman Quits Yale

HERMAN HICKMAN

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 12 (AP) —Jordan Olivar, who joined the staff only a few months ago, today was named Yale's acting head football coach. He succeeds Herman Hickman.

Big, 300-pound Hickman, one of the nation's best known coaches, quit yesterday for private business.

The naming of Olivar and the resignation of Hickman, who had eight years to go on a 10-year appointment, came as big surprises to nearly everybody at Yale, and elsewhere.

Hickman signed a public relations job with the General Cigar Company of New York. He also promised to help Olivar, when time permits, as a consultant and scout.

Olivar was appointed acting head football coach for the 1952 season only. But, it was believed to be only a technicality, depending on how the squad he inherits from Hickman performs.

Probably not as well known nationally as Hickman, the 37-year-old, 6-4 Olivar is rated high among the football coaching fraternity. His experience includes six years at Villanova, where he also captained the eleven as a senior, and three years at Loyola of Los Angeles.

Olivar, whose home is in Inglewood, Calif., was reported heading for New Haven to meet with Hickman and other members of the staff later this week.

Southeastern Expels Kentucky for Year

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 12 (AP)—Kentucky, a temporary castout from the conference its basketball forces ruled with an iron fist, tackled the project of filling 14 open dates on its cage slate today.

Yesterday's one-year suspension from basketball competition in the Southeastern Conference, an unprecedented penalty levied for the school's laxity in administering its sports program, left Kentucky with only 10 games on its hardwood schedule.

In addition, the SEC ruled that two football players were ineligible for future participation and fined Kentucky $500 for each of them.

The basketball suspension was ordered by the SEC executive committee. It means Kentucky can play no conference school for the duration of the suspension, but leaves the Wildcats free to play any school outside the conference.

In this connection, however, the SEC dropped a hint that Kentucky might have to rule on the eligibility of one or more basketball players before they would be accepted by the National Collegiate Athletic Association. It said Kentucky's suspension was for "violation of rules and regulations" of the SEC. Only eligibility rules appear strong enough to stand before a suspension.

Other Players Hit

This was taken as an indication that Kentucky must remove the players who caused the suspension before it can meet outside teams belonging to the NCAA. Already on its tentative schedule outside the SEC are St. Louis, Minnesota, Notre Dame, DePaul and Xavier.

Dr. H. L. Donovan, president of Kentucky, and Dean A. D. Kirwan, Kentucky faculty adviser in athletics, were critical of the executive committee's action. They termed the punishment excessive but said they will not appeal it to the Conference as a whole.

The rulings were based on findings uncovered by an investigation conducted by SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore last May. Kentucky asked to be investigated after New York Judge Saul Streit criticized what he termed "highly commercialized and systematized" athletic operations at Kentucky.

Judge Streit read a 63-page statement of criticism when he gave suspended sentences to three former Kentucky players who accepted money from gamblers to regulate the outcome of games.

Turck Pitches Four-Hitter to Stop VFW, 6 to 3, in Fraternal League

Police Meets Legion In Today's Game

Tony Turck pitched four-hit ball as the Elks Club defeated the Veterans of Foreign Wars, 6 to 3, in Monday's Fraternal Youth League action at municipal stadium.

The Elks, scoring their third victory against four defeats, rallied for three runs in the third and single markers in the fourth, fifth and sixth. Turck, who walked five and struck out the same number, yielded a run in the fourth and two in the fifth.

The winners clubbed Noel Bonacci for 10 blows, including two each by Nick Kearney, Willie Cragan, Jim Nerone and Jack Redmond.

With one out in the third, the Elks loaded the bases on singles by Jack Redmond, Nick Kearney and Willie Cragan. Redmond and Kearney scored on Tomaseskie's miscue and Bob Burns' single chased Cragan across the plate. Ronnie Jansen's double kept up the rally but Nerone and Turck popped to shortstop to end the inning.

Errors accounted for Elks markers in the fourth and fifth innings but Jim Nerone's single scored Cragan with a legitimate tally in the sixth.

Frank Turck's hit scored the first VFW tally in the fourth but the pair in the fifth were the result of outfield miscues. The Vets threatened to stir up trouble in the seventh but Nick Kearney engineered a DP that broke the back of the rally.

Joe Pino had half the VFW hits off Turck with a pair of singles.

USING A BELL FOR YOUR HUNTING DOG

WHERE BIRD DOGS ARE USED IN HEAVY, BROKEN COVER, A SMALL SHEEP BELL WORN ON THE COLLAR IS AN ADVANTAGE. SOME HUNTERS BELIEVE THE SOUND MAKES THE BIRDS FLUSH WILD BUT BELLED-DOG OWNERS CLAIM THAT BIRDS SIT TIGHTER BECAUSE THEY ARE CURIOUS ABOUT THE UNUSUAL RINGING.

A HUNTER KNOWS WHERE THE DOG IS WHEN HE CAN'T SEE HIM. QUIETNESS USUALLY MEANS HE IS HOLDING POINT ON GAME. A DOG GETS USED TO THE SOUND.

Strictly speaking, only the male of the peafowl should be called a peacock. The female properly is called a peahen.

Israel, Esopus Little Leaguer, Pounding Ball at .812, With Thirteen for Sixteen

Josh Israel, a pitcher with the Town of Esopus Little League Indians, comes pretty close to being the most uncanny LL hitter in the area.

In 16 trips to the plate, Israel has accounted for 13 hits and a phenomenal .812 average to top the Esopus circuit by a hefty margin. In the pitching department he boasts a 2-1 record.

Israel's phenomenal thumping overshadows such hefty batting as Harry Kerse's .550 and a .538 by Paul Thomas of the Giants. J. Brice of the Dodgers boasts an even .500. H. Chandler of the Indians is also batting .500 but for only four times at bat.

Roberts Tops Homers

N. Pratt of the Yankees, with a .448 average, leads in doubles with seven. Ken Shaver and Joe "Bolo" Beaver, the strikeout artist, each have six. J. Brice leads with three triples and S. Roberts is the home run leader with three.

N. Pratt is unbeaten in two pitching starts and W. Willus is 1-0 but the actual pitching leader is Joe Beaver of the Yankees with four wins in five starts. Carl Van Wert of the Giants stands 3 and 1.

Canadians Rate Bob Perry Comer

Montreal, Aug. 12 (AP) — "I'd hate to play Bob Perry in two years time."

That's what a dog-tired Brendan Macken said after he had defeated the 19-year-old Perry yesterday to become the first Canadian to win a match in Davis Cup tennis play against the Americans since Marcel Rainville turned the trick against Sidney Wood in 1931.

The United States team had already won the best-of-five North American zone final with two singles victories Friday and another in doubles Saturday.

Macken downed Perry 6-3, 11-13, 6-4, 6-4 after Herb Flam had made it four-straight for the United States, defeating Lorne Main 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

Red Sox Break Tie With Dodgers In Sixth to Win KAA Game, 6-5

Charlie Boice Winning Pitcher

Charlie Boice, the Red Sox flinger, was within three outs of his third KAA Little League shutout yesterday when the Dodgers staged a spectacular sixth inning rally that netted five runs to create a 5-5 tie.

But a moment later, Boice's teammates made quick work of southpaw Glenn Newell for the marker that gave them a 6-5 decision and a 4-1 record in the second half standings.

Boice pitched brilliantly through five innings and appeared to have the situation well in hand, when big Jim Volker slammed a three-run homer over the left field fence. The big blow tied the score and brought on Newell, the slick little southpaw in the bottom half of the sixth.

VanEtten Stars

The Red Sox were no respecters of reputations. Tom Van Etten whaled an outside pitch into deep right field for his second double of the game. He took third on a wild pitch and scored on Tom Hallinan's fly to right field.

Boice gave up only six hits, walked four and struck out five. Charlie Williams, the Dodger third sacker, had a pair including a double.

The meat of the Red Sox batting order—Boice, Jim Cullum and Tom Van Etten—accounted for eight of the 12 hits off starter George Uhl and Newell.

Van Etten rapped two doubles and a single and Boice stroked a double and two singles. Jimmy Cullum and Frank Weishaupt also had a pair of safeties.

The Red Sox triumph resolved the second half pennant chase into a two-team struggle between the Sox and the Yankees. The clubs are tied in the lost column with one setback apiece. The Giants with three losses and Dodgers with four are virtually eliminated, although they will have much to say about the final standings.

The Yankees are scheduled against the Giants today and the Dodgers on Friday. The Red Sox have a date with the Giants on Thursday.

Sixty-three of our good golfing citizens, who had every intention of holing out when they stepped to the Freeman Hole-in-One tee, missed the green completely with all five shots. Wiltwyck Golf Club tries its new style championship finals this weekend and it should result in a new peak of club interest.

Our tournament chairmen, hard working and sincere as they are, have yet to eliminate the one real bogey in a championship tournament—getting matches played off on time. Except in case of extreme emergencies the match should be treated as a solemn obligation on the part of the contestants. There are too many weak excuses tossed around by players who can't or won't meet scheduled commitments. Already this season we have had an example of high class skullduggery in a match involving two "name" players. And you must remember that delightful rhubarb involving a former city finalist a few years ago.

• Putt and Take:

As a former baseball player accustomed to the barbed repartee from rival dugouts, especially at Saugerties in "the good old days" we never wanted any part of golf as solemn as burial at sea and as serious as a major operation. We have always felt that solemnity surrounding golf is often exaggerated and over-rated. As a matter of fact, it would be an extreme pleasure to play in a foursome followed around the course by a brass band. Wanted—three volunteers. And maybe we can induce Mike Marchuk, the aspiring golfer, to furnish the music. This would not be a new stunt. Gene Sarazen, one of the most deliberate of golf greats, once played par golf for nine holes with a brass band following in his wake and even tooting sly notes on the trombone when Gene was in the act of putting. Can you think of anything funnier than pulling a sad trombone note just when some crochety old golfer was about to stroke a two-foot putt.

• The Nineteenth Hole:

Did you know that most of the top players in golf history—Walter Hagen, Bobby Jones, Byron Nelson, Lawson Little, Jimmy Demaret and others—were naturally left handed although playing right-handed golf? Does that prove anything about the strong left hand theory? Par-3 holes are those that murder the errant golfer in medal tournaments. The Scylla and Charybdis of golf they have tempted many a golfer into a fiendish desire to throw his clubs into the nearest pool. And what finer example of the par-3 would you want than Twaalfskill's No. 3; the third at Palenville and 8th hole at Wiltwyck; the ninth at Woodstock and Dutchess Country Club's 6th. Woodstock's 9th compares with Wiltwyck's 9th as a great finishing hole and Dutchess' 18th is the easiest. If you think No. 4 at Wiltwyck is ornery, what about No. 7 at Dutchess. And isn't the 4th at James Baird the toughest golf hole, bar none, in these parts?

Frank McCahill, the straight-hitting Irishman, is back on the beam at Woodstock. List Fred Allen of the same club among the great scramblers who are consistently in the 70's. Our own Alvin Boice can do a pretty fair job, too, when he has to. Harvey Bostic's topheavy margin of victory over Bob Daley surprised many of the Wiltwyck railbirds. Rudy, the grand host at the Woodstock Country Club bar, invites you to view the pictorial reproductions of Woodstock's nine holes in the tap room. Frank Walsh, the eminent golf teacher, has devised a new theory of hitting that promises to bring relief to millions of discouraged chronic slicers. The theory is known as "the counter-clockwise turn," and threatens to revolutionize the theory of teaching. Having played twice with both of the gentlemen causes us to wish that Floyd W. Flint and Bob Daley, the Iron Man, might hook up in a 72-hole match, with the attendant repartee tape recorded for posterity. What a delight it would prove for 19th hole gatherings.

Warren Nesbitt, the Ellenville lad who was just a stroke out of contention in the Jaycee state tournament for a berth in the Jaycee Nationals in Seattle had a chance to make the trip to Oregon as an alternate. But it came too late to make proper preparations. Golf continues to be big business in the athletic goods industry. The factory selling prices include excise tax of all golf equipment sold last year was $46,971,306, approximately 40 per cent of all athletic goods sold. Baseball and softball equipment was the second largest item at $26,067,383.. Athletic shoes, including golf shoes, was third at $12,103,461. The principal sales category in golf equipment was clubs. Manufacturers sold 4,030,331 clubs for $24,008,575 and 2,920,340 dozen balls for $18,356,346.

Then there were the two Scots who hooked up in a match under a broiling summer sun. One had a stroke—and the other made him count it.

How These Lassies Can Pound That Pill; Only 53 Runs, 74 Hits and a Triple Play!

The boxscore doesn't exactly "prove" but that must have been quite a softball game between the girls from Hutton Park and the gals from Block Park.

Much to a statistical friend's delight, the Hutton lassies emerged triumphant, 29 to 24, in an extra-inning battle featured by, among lesser items, three home runs, 53 runs, 74 hits and a triple play!

The triple play was as complicated as the May pole dance, going from Kathleen Mayer to Carol Hoffman to Carol Mehm, thence to Helen May Bunt and finally to Mary Agnes Schatzel.

Harriet Ann Diers, Freddy Rice and Betty Schoonmaker, not the golfer-bowler, stroked the home runs.

It took a five-run rally by Block Park in the bottom of the seventh to deadlock the pitcher's duel at 24-24. Hutton came right back with five in the first extra inning.

Selina Rice, the Hutton twirler, permitted 36 enemy hits but she was no piker in her own behalf, slamming seven singles in eight trips to the plate. There were such sundry items as five hits apiece for Florence Rice, Freddy Rice and Beatrice Newkirk, and four each for everybody else. All adding up to 38.

On the other side of the house, the Block Parkers collected 36 hits and Agnes Schatzel had a perfect day with "6 for 6." Helen May Bunt and Harriet Ann Diers got five apiece and nobody went home with less than three.

These murderous swinging gals go at it again real soon for the park championship. Please bring your pencils and a lot of paper.

Quick Comeback

Pittsburgh, Aug. 12 (AP)—Ron Necciai, who was pounded in his major league debut against Chicago last Sunday, bounced back with an impressive relief job last night. The highly-touted rookie hurled three hitless innings against the Reds, striking out five of the 10 batters he faced.

Chicago—Jimmy Martinez, 151, Phoenix, Ariz., outpointed Chuck Foster, 145, Omaha (8).

TIED UP IN TAM GOLF

Cary Middlecoff, the nation's leading money winner, (left), and Julius Boros, 1952 national open champion, are literally all knotted up a cross-hand shake after they tied at 276 in the $90,000 "World" golf championship at Tam O'Shanter, Chicago, August 10. They were scheduled to play off for the $25 000 winner's prize at 18 holes, August 11. The loser will collect $12,500.

Julius Boros Shoots Four-Under-Par 68 To Beat Middlecoff in $25,000 Playoff

Chicago, Aug. 12 (AP) — Golf's golden August visit by Santa Claus in the person of Promoter George S. May could be bigger and better next year than his $120,000 Tam O'Shanter show just closed.

That should be good news to the likes of U. S. Open champion Julius Boros and the golfing dentist, Cary Middlecoff, who yesterday settled for a record $25,000 and $12,500 respectively in a playoff for May's "world championship of Golf."

May said he has dates reserved with the PGA next year for his annual Tam O'Shanter carnival and has in mind an even greater jackpot than he paid in the dovetailed $30,000 All-American and $90,000 "world" the past two weeks.

May plans to increase the $25,000 world first prize and the $3,420 top melon in the All-American. He may even arrange regional playoffs to bring a larger field to the combined meets.

There were reports that Boros, who rallied furiously for his two-stroke, four-under-par 68 playoff victory, and the vanquished Middlecoff had an under-the-table deal to split the world $25,000 first and $12,500 second prizes.

That would have given each $18,750 and the word was out that they had arranged to settle the taxes on the entire $37,500 swag.

But the two players and the PGA denied such a maneuver. The PGA's freshest money-winning list had Boros in front with $34,332, based on a $25,000 first "world" prize and Middlecoff second with $27,739, pegged on second "world" money of $12,500.

The two had finished the 72-hole "world" event Sunday with identical 276's, 12 under par.

Hickman Quits Yale

HERMAN HICKMAN

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 12 (AP) —Jordan Olivar, who joined the staff only a few months ago, today was named Yale's acting head football coach. He succeeds Herman Hickman.

Big, 300-pound Hickman, one of the nation's best known coaches, quit yesterday for private business.

The naming of Olivar and the resignation of Hickman, who had eight years to go on a 10-year appointment, came as big surprises to nearly everybody at Yale, and elsewhere.

Hickman signed a public relations job with the General Cigar Company of New York. He also promised to help Olivar, when time permits, as a consultant and scout.

Olivar was appointed acting head football coach for the 1952 season only. But, it was believed to be only a technicality, depending on how the squad he inherits from Hickman performs.

Probably not as well known nationally as Hickman, the 37-year-old, 6-4 Olivar is rated high among the football coaching fraternity. His experience includes six years at Villanova, where he also captained the eleven as a senior, and three years at Loyola of Los Angeles.

Olivar, whose home is in Inglewood, Calif., was reported heading for New Haven to meet with Hickman and other members of the staff later this week.

Southeastern Expels Kentucky for Year

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 12 (AP)—Kentucky, a temporary castout from the conference its basketball forces ruled with an iron fist, tackled the project of filling 14 open dates on its cage slate today.

Yesterday's one-year suspension from basketball competition in the Southeastern Conference, an unprecedented penalty levied for the school's laxity in administering its sports program, left Kentucky with only 10 games on its hardwood schedule.

In addition, the SEC ruled that two football players were ineligible for future participation and fined Kentucky $500 for each of them.

The basketball suspension was ordered by the SEC executive committee. It means Kentucky can play no conference school for the duration of the suspension, but leaves the Wildcats free to play any school outside the conference.

In this connection, however, the SEC dropped a hint that Kentucky might have to rule on the eligibility of one or more basketball players before they would be accepted by the National Collegiate Athletic Association. It said Kentucky's suspension was for "violation of rules and regulations" of the SEC. Only eligibility rules appear strong enough to stand behind a suspension.

Other Players Hit

This was taken as an indication that Kentucky must remove the players who caused the suspension before it can meet outside teams belonging to the NCAA. Already on its tentative schedule outside the SEC are St. Louis, Minnesota, Notre Dame, DePaul and Xavier.

Dr. H. L. Donovan, president of Kentucky, and Dean A. D. Kirwan, Kentucky faculty adviser in athletics, were critical of the executive committee's action. They termed the punishment excessive but said they will not appeal it to the Conference as a whole.

The rulings were based on findings uncovered by an investigation conducted by SEC Commissioner Bernie Moore last May. Kentucky asked to be investigated after New York Judge Saul Streit criticized what he termed "highly commercialized and systematized" athletic operations at Kentucky.

Judge Streit read a 63-page statement of criticism when he gave suspended sentences to three former Kentucky players who accepted money from gamblers to regulate the outcome of games.

Turck Pitches Four-Hitter to Stop VFW, 6 to 3, in Fraternal League

Police Meets Legion In Today's Game

Tony Turck pitched four-hit ball as the Elks Club defeated the Veterans of Foreign Wars, 6 to 3, in Monday's Fraternal Youth League action at municipal stadium.

The Elks, scoring their third victory against four defeats, rallied for three runs in the third and single markers in the fourth, fifth and sixth. Turck, who walked five and struck out the same number, yielded a run in the fourth and two in the fifth.

The winners clubbed Noel Bonacci for 10 blows, including two each by Nick Kearney, Willie Cragan, Jim Nerone and Jack Redmond.

With one out in the third, the Elks loaded the bases on singles by Jack Redmond, Nick Kearney and Willie Cragan. Redmond and Kearney scored on Tomaseskie's miscue and Bob Burns' single chased Cragan across the plate. Ronnie Jansen's double kept up the rally but Nerone and Turck popped to shortstop to end the inning.

Errors accounted for Elks markers in the fourth and fifth innings but Jim Nerone's single scored Cragan with a legitimate tally in the sixth.

Frank Turck's hit scored the first VFW tally in the fourth but the pair in the fifth were the result of outfield miscues. The Vets threatened to stir up trouble in the seventh but Nick Kearney engineered a DP that broke the back of the rally.

Joe Pino had half the VFW hits off Turck with a pair of singles.

USING A BELL FOR YOUR HUNTING DOG

WHERE BIRD DOGS ARE USED IN HEAVY, BROKEN COVER, A SMALL SHEEP BELL WORN ON THE COLLAR IS AN ADVANTAGE. SOME HUNTERS BELIEVE THE SOUND MAKES THE BIRDS FLUSH WILD BUT BELLED-DOG OWNERS CLAIM THAT BIRDS SIT TIGHTER BECAUSE THEY ARE CURIOUS ABOUT THE UNUSUAL RINGING.

A HUNTER KNOWS WHERE THE DOG IS WHEN HE CAN'T SEE HIM. QUIETNESS USUALLY MEANS HE IS HOLDING POINT ON GAME. A DOG GETS USED TO THE SOUND.

Strictly speaking only the male of the peafowl should be called a peacock. The female properly is called a peahen.

Israel, Esopus Little Leaguer, Pounding Ball at .812, With Thirteen for Sixteen

Josh Israel, a pitcher with the Town of Esopus Little League Indians, comes pretty close to being the most uncanny LL hitter in the area.

In 16 trips to the plate, Israel has accounted for 13 hits and a phenomenal .812 average to top the Esopus circuit by a hefty margin. In the pitching department he boasts a 2-1 record.

Israel's phenomenal thumping overshadows such hefty batting as Harry Kerse's .550 and a .538 by Paul Thomas of the Giants. J. Brice of the Dodgers boasts an even .500. H. Chandler of the Indians is also batting .500 but for only four times at bat.

Roberts Tops Homers

N. Pratt of the Yankees, with a .448 average, leads in doubles with seven. Ken Shaver and Joe "Bolo" Beaver, the strikeout artist, each have six. J. Brice leads with three triples and S. Roberts is the home run leader with three.

N. Pratt is unbeaten in two pitching starts and W. Willus is 1-0 but the actual pitching leader is Joe Beaver of the Yankees with four wins in five starts. Carl Van Wert of the Giants stands 3 and 1.

Canadians Rate Bob Perry Comer

Montreal, Aug. 12 (AP) — "I'd hate to play Bob Perry in two years time."

That's what a dog-tired Brendan Macken said after he had defeated the 19-year-old Perry yesterday to become the first Canadian to win a match in Davis Cup tennis play against the Americans since Marcel Rainville turned the trick against Sidney Wood in 1931.

The United States team had already won the best-of-five North American zone final with two singles victories Friday and another in doubles Saturday.

Macken downed Perry 6-3, 11-13, 6-4, 6-4 after Herb Flam had made it four-straight for the United States, defeating Lorne Main 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

No Tolls on the Bear Highways

By WARREN PAGE
Shooting Editor

There's one set of roads up in Alaska that the territorial highway commission doesn't have to worry about as far as maintenance is concerned. That's the network of bear highways along and between the salmon creeks.

At just about this time, with the first full runs of salmon darkening the tidal pools and jamming the riffles, the biggest concentration of bruins in the world is tramping up and down those paths, beating moss down an inch or two deeper until some of the trails are smooth enough to ride a bicycle over.

The black bear is often an erratic clown, but the brown bear, the coastal grizzly, is something of a serious-minded conformist. When he leaves one riffle to look up another where the dog salmon might be a little fatter, or cuts through to the next creek to investigate the humpy situation, the brownie follows a track made by hundreds before him.

Padding deliberately along with a ponderous disdain for the goings-on of minor critters, there being nothing in the northland save man to threaten him, he plops each paw into the dents printed by the whole family tree of bears that walked that trail before him. The end result is a path pressed smooth along the line of the easiest travel. This is no dinky slice across the forest floor such as deer leave, but a broad-gauge road of marching paw dents worn a foot or more into the moss.

Grizzly highways aren't marked by printed signs, but even if old Ursus isn't handy with the lettering brush his road is itself a warning sign. Two of them, in fact: One to any puny 300-pound black to scram back to his own bailiwick, one to any man-critter to keep his eyes open at all turns and intersections lest he into run into a half ton of brownie trucking along in the opposite direction.

The road carries other signs any woodsman can read. A tuft of hair rubbed off on the underside of a windfall will tell you whether the brown bear whose prints you're straddling was blondish like the Yakutat grizzlies, a near-black brunette like the Shiras bears of Admiralty Island, or just plain chocolate brown like husky old Ursus Sitkensis from Baranoff. The coastal brownes come in all manner of colors, from the shade of dark honey to silver-tipped black.

The width of the fresh tracks along the road can tell you something about the physique of the hump-shouldered character who made them. A clear fore-paw print in a patch of mud which is more than eight inches wide was probably made by a fair trophy bear, one that will square out eight feet honest measure after the hide is tanned. A good brownie also has longer legs than you think. Even at an amble his stride will be all your own pace can stretch unless you're an adagio dancer.

But the real payoff is in the width of the track. A big bear is broad-beamed at the stern, and walks with a washerwoman waddle. If he plunks those hind pads down over its toed-in fore-paw prints so that he makes a road of two-foot gauge, he's a good one!

Along the highways you'll find young trees snapped off above head height, larger ones blazed by bites or clawed free of bark higher than you can reach. These are bear signposts.

The late Ernest Thompson Seton felt that the bigger bruins marked up young spruces to show their own size as a warning to all brownies of lesser reach or bite that this was the boss' private road. This could well be. After many days of hunting and watching the big coastal grizzlies, I'm convinced they're more human in many ways than people.

The SCOREBoard

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The time is now for the Little Miracle of 1952.

Dawn of this fateful day—Aug. 12—again finds the bewildered New York Giants, rocking and reeling, far in the wake of the front-running Brooklyns.

Once more the pennant is being conceded to the Dodgers' booming home run power. Once more the Giant cause is a forlorn hope and a prayer.

Nine games back—instead of 13 or 13½ as they were last year—the Giants show no signs of an August-September drive such as thrilled the nation in '51.

But there was little hope a year ago, either. No signs that the Giants were about to take off on a 16-game win streak. No hint that a blazing spurt down the stretch would set the stage for Bobby Thomson's diamond heroics of Oct. 3.

Outlook Not Bright

Sal Maglie is ailing. Willie Mays is in the army. Monte Irvin still is below par. Larry Jansen isn't winning. The outlook for another miracle is even darker than last year.

A freak of the schedule—or is it fate?—brings the Giants to Brooklyn tonight for a three-game series. A sweep for the Giants is almost a must. Two out of three by the Brooks would open up a 10-game lead with less than 50 to go.

The Brooks come into the big series with all guns booming. Gil Hodges, Roy Campanella and Jackie Robinson hammered home runs last night in a big six-run rally in the sixth inning at Philadelphia to earn an even break for the night.

Robin Roberts pitched the Phils to a 7-2 victory in the first half of a twi-night doubleheader for his 18th win. The Phils were out front in the second game, too, on Bill Nicholson's three-run pinch-homer in the fifth until the Dodger homer barrage started. When it was over, Brooklyn had the second game in the bag, 9-5.

Drop Two to Braves

Double disaster was the story for the Giants in Boston where they followed two shutout defeats with a doubleheader loss to the sixth-place Braves, 11-10 and 4-2.

Shoddy relief pitching lost the first for New York, blowing a 10-7 lead while the Braves rallied for four in the eighth. Lew Burdette held the Giants to five hits in the second game.

St. Louis also lost ground to Brooklyn, while absorbing a 10-2 pasting by the Chicago Cubs. Chicago's Hank Sauer slammed his 29th and 30th home runs to bring his runs batted in total to 96.

Reynolds Blanks Bosox

Allie Reynolds' two-hit shutout and 150th major league victory was the big news in the American League as the New York Yankees blanked Boston 7-0, opening up a 2½-game lead on idle Cleveland. Mickey Mantle hit his 17th and 18th homers plus a double in the attack on Sid Hudson and two successors.

Cleveland and Detroit were rained out. So were St. Louis and Chicago in the American.

Washington split two with Philadelphia, the Senators taking the first on pinch hitter Frank Campos' fly ball with the bases loaded in the ninth, 6-5. The A's bunched three of their six hits in the sixth to beat Randy Gumpert on singles by Ferris Fain and Dave Philley and Elmer Valo's double, to win 2-1.

In the other big league game, Cincinnati drove Pittsburgh even deeper into the National League cellar with a 10-4 romp. Hank Edwards' single with the bases loaded in the first inning knocked out rookie Cal Hogue and started the Reds on their way.

The Mississippi river had added 50 square miles to the area of Louisiana in the past century.

Influence Declines

Canberra, Australia (AP) — The Australian government claims membership of the Australian Communist Party today is about half what it was in 1949. In 1949 Communist Party membership was believed to be about 12,000. Labor Minister Harold Holt says the Liberal-Country Party government had made a well-planned penetration of Communist ranks since it gained power in 1949. Communists have lost control of some trade unions since the government introduced secret ballots, supervised by Arbitration Court, for positions as union executives.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Threw Caution Out; Had Terrific Game

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

All bridge players are divided into two classes—those who can be shut out and those who can't. Many years ago, I remember, I was the kind of player who would always bid when an opponent tried to shut me out. I am not be any wiser today, but I'm at least more cautious.

My son Jim, who played as my partner in the Men's Pair event of the recent national championships, has probably inherited my unwillingness to be shut out. Fortunately or unfortunately, I'm not sure which, he has not yet acquired my caution. As a result, Jim was able to star on the hand shown today.

What should South do when East opens the bidding with four hearts? To pass may allow the opponents to get away with murder; but to bid risks a disaster. When Jim held the South cards, he asked no questions. With the confidence of youth, he bid four spades and took his chances.

West doubled like the crack of doom, and opened the seven of hearts after everybody had passed. East won the first trick with the king of hearts and pondered mightily.

The only heart not in sight was the deuce, and it was important to guess who held it. If South had the deuce of hearts, it was vital for East to cash another heart trick at once since otherwise he would never get it.

If West held the deuce of hearts it was vital for East to switch at once to diamonds in order to make the best use of his only chance to lead.

East decided first that West would not double if he held two hearts, and then decided that South would not bid four spades if he held two hearts. This got him nowhere, so East tossed a mental coin and led the second heart. It was an unfortunate choice for poor East.

Jim ruffed the second heart, finessed dummy's queen of clubs, returned to his hand by leading a trump to the ace, finessed the jack of clubs, and returned to his hand again by leading a trump to the king. Now Jim could lead a third club to dummy and discard a diamond on one of dummy's established clubs.

West hastened to ruff the fourth club, but what was West to do next? He could cash his remaining high trump, but then he had to lead a diamond. The forced diamond lead gave Jim a free finesse— and his contract.

I'm afraid Jim will never learn to be cautious as long as he can get away with living dangerously.

No Tolls on the Bear Highways

By WARREN PAGE
Shooting Editor

There's one set of roads up in Alaska that the territorial highway commission doesn't have to worry about as far as maintenance is concerned. That's the network of bear highways along and between the salmon creeks.

At just about this time, with the first full runs of salmon darkening the tidal pools and jamming the riffles, the biggest concentration of bruins in the world is tramping up and down those paths, beating moss down an inch or two deeper until some of the trails are smooth enough to ride a bicycle over.

The black bear is often an erratic clown, but the brown bear, the coastal grizzly, is something of a serious-minded conformist. When he leaves one riffle to look up another where the dog salmon might be a little fatter, or cuts through to the next creek to investigate the humpy situation, the brownie follows a track made by hundreds before him.

Padding deliberately along with a ponderous disdain for the goings-on of minor critters, there being nothing in the northland save man to threaten him, he plops each paw into the dents printed by the whole family tree of bears that walked that trail before him. The end result is a path pressed smooth along the line of the easiest travel. This is no dinky slice across the forest floor such as deer leave, but a broad-gauge road of marching paw dents worn a foot or more into the moss.

Grizzly highways aren't marked by printed signs, but even if old Ursus isn't handy with the lettering brush his road is itself a warning sign. Two of them, in fact: One to any puny 300-pound black to scram back to his own bailiwick, one to any man-critter to keep his eyes open at all turns and intersections lest he into run into a half ton of brownie trucking along in the opposite direction.

The road carries other signs any woodsman can read. A tuft of hair rubbed off on the underside of a windfall will tell you whether the brown bear whose prints you're straddling was blondish like the Yakutat grizzlies, a near-black brunette like the Shiras bears of Admiralty Island, or just plain chocolate brown like husky old Ursus Sitkensis from Baranoff. The coastal brownes come in all manner of colors, from the shade of dark honey to silver-tipped black.

The width of the fresh tracks along the road can tell you something about the physique of the hump-shouldered character who made them. A clear fore-paw print in a patch of mud which is more than eight inches wide was probably made by a fair trophy bear, one that will square out eight feet honest measure after the hide is tanned. A good brownie also has longer legs than you think. Even at an amble his stride will be all your own pace can stretch unless you're an adagio dancer.

But the real payoff is in the width of the track. A big bear is broad-beamed at the stern, and walks with a washerwoman waddle. If he plunks those hind pads down over its toed-in fore-paw prints so that he makes a road of two-foot gauge, he's a good one!

Along the highways you'll find young trees snapped off above head height, larger ones blazed by bites or clawed free of bark higher than you can reach. These are bear signposts.

The late Ernest Thompson Seton felt that the bigger bruins marked up young spruces to show their own size as a warning to all brownies of lesser reach or bite that this was the boss' private road. This could well be. After many days of hunting and watching the big coastal grizzlies, I'm convinced they're more human in many ways than people.

The SCORE Board

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The time is now for the Little Miracle of 1952.

Dawn of this fateful day—Aug. 12—again finds the bewildered New York Giants, rocking and reeling, far in the wake of the front-running Brooklyns.

Once more the pennant is being conceded to the Dodgers' booming home run power. Once more the Giant cause is a forlorn hope and a prayer.

Nine games back—instead of 13 or 13½ as they were last year—the Giants show no signs of an August-September drive such as thrilled the nation in '51.

But there was little hope a year ago, either. No signs that the Giants were about to take off on a 16-game win streak. No hint that a blazing spurt down the stretch would set the stage for Bobby Thomson's diamond heroics of Oct. 3.

Outlook Not Bright

Sal Maglie is ailing. Willie Mays is in the army. Monte Irvin still is below par. Larry Jansen isn't winning. The outlook for another miracle is even darker than last year.

A freak of the schedule—or is it fate?—brings the Giants to Brooklyn tonight for a three-game series. A sweep for the Giants is almost a must. Two out of three by the Brooks would open up a 10-game lead with less than 50 to go.

The Brooks come into the big series with all guns booming. Gil Hodges, Roy Campanella and Jackie Robinson hammered home runs last night in a big six-run rally in the sixth inning at Philadelphia to earn an even break for the night.

Robin Roberts pitched the Phils to a 7-2 victory in the first half of a twi-night doubleheader for his 18th win. The Phils were out front in the second game, too, on Bill Nicholson's three-run pinch-homer in the fifth until the Dodger homer barrage started. When it was over, Brooklyn had the second game in the bag, 9-5.

Bowling Meetings

The Ferraro Major League plans an organizational meeting at Ferraro's Bowlodrome on Thursday, Aug. 14, at 8 p. m. Several important matters will be discussed and president Saul Goldfarb requests a large attendance.

The Men's Club Federation League will hold an organization meeting on Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the YMCA. Al Sonnenberg, president, and Art Crist, secretary, will preside.

The meeting is open to all church groups within the Federation, with openings for six teams this season. Due to the shortage of alleys in Kingston, it is urged that everyone interested sign up at once.

The Y alleys have been resurfaced to meet ABC requirements and everything is ready for the seasonal opener.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Threw Caution Out; Had Terrific Game

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

All bridge players are divided into two classes—those who can be shut out and those who can't. Many years ago, I remember, I was the kind of player who would always bid when an opponent tried to shut me out. I am not be any wiser today, but I'm at least more cautious.

My son Jim, who played as my partner in the Men's Pair event of the recent national championships, has probably inherited my unwillingness to be shut out. Fortunately or unfortunately, I'm not sure which, he has not yet acquired my caution. As a result, Jim was able to star on the hand shown today.

What should South do when East opens the bidding with four hearts? To pass may allow the opponents to get away with murder; but to bid risks a disaster. When Jim held the South cards, he asked no questions. With the confidence of youth, he bid four spades and took his chances.

West doubled like the crack of doom, and opened the seven of hearts after everybody had passed. East won the first trick with the king of hearts and pondered mightily.

The only heart not in sight was the deuce, and it was important to guess who held it. If South had the deuce of hearts, it was vital for East to cash another heart trick at once since otherwise he would never get it.

Opening lead—♥ 7

If West held the deuce of hearts it was vital for East to switch at once to diamonds in order to make the best use of his only chance to lead.

East decided first that West would not double if he held two hearts, and then decided that South would not bid four spades if he held two hearts. This got him nowhere, so East tossed a mental coin and led the second heart. It was an unfortunate choice for poor East.

Jim ruffed the second heart, finessed dummy's queen of clubs, returned to his hand by leading a trump to the ace, finessed the jack of clubs, and returned to his hand again by leading a trump to the king. Now Jim could lead a third club to dummy and discard a diamond on one of dummy's established clubs.

West hastened to ruff the fourth club, but what was West to do next? He could cash his remaining high trump, but then he had to lead a diamond. The forced diamond lead gave Jim a free finesse— and his contract.

I'm afraid Jim will never learn to be cautious as long as he can get away with living dangerously.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, Jr.

Pianist Is Guest At Local Concert

Woodstock, August 12—The second Concert Dardenne which took place Saturday afternoon featured the visiting pianist Anton Rovinsky, as well as Victor Dardenne, violinist.

The program included Beethoven' Sonata No. 1 in D Major and Sibelius's Sonatina in E Major, which respectively began and ended the concert. Both sonatas responded beautifully to Dardenne's robust inventiveness of phrasing and Rovinsky's gracious touch. The thorough musicianship of the two players succeeded in blending their individual styles into an ensemble of unusual harmony and balance. This is the first time this beautiful Sibelius sonata has been heard here in many years.

Rovinsky who had shown superb craftmanship in the Beethoven work, completely won his audience with his lambent tone in the ethereal Brahm's Ballade (D Minor, Opus 10), which opened his series of piano solos. Another high light was his own composition, Little Suite, an interesting study in contemporary style. The Prelude of the Suite, entitled Mist and Clouds, was particularly intriguing to this reviewer.

The Dardennes are to be congratulated for another event of such distinction and interest.

Mystery Thriller Will Open Tonight

Woodstock, Aug. 12—A thriller mystery drama, Invitation To a Murder, opens tonight at the Woodstock Playhouse, with an all-Broadway cast. The production, which will continue through Sunday, August 17, is staged by Robert H. Harris, director.

A smash hit of its season, Invitation To a Murder, features Edith Gresham, member of the original Broadway Oklahoma cast and TV actress, who was brought from Manhattan especially for the leading role, originally created by Gale Sondergaard. Playing the role created by Humphrey Bogart is Gordon Mills, applauded as the literary agent in last week's comedy, Yes, My Darling Daughter. They are joined by actors Franklyn Fox, last week's irate father; Pat Sales, last week's "darling daughter;" Robert Baines, who has returned to the Playhouse after delighting audiences in the season's earlier productions; and by the popular Playhouse favorite and Woodstock resident, Jane Lloyd-Jones.

Two additional New York actors have been brought to the Playhouse to complete the large cast of this thriller: Richard Shankland, well-known TV star, and John Sydow, acclaimed last season for his Playhouse successes as the Inspector in An Inspector Calls and as the booming lawyer in Shaw's You Never Can Tell.

Margaret McDonough has designed the setting.

Paintings Named In Novel Manner

Woodstock, August 12—Last Friday afternoon, C. J. McCarthy, whose one-man show of paintings and drawings opened at the Town House, introduced a novel and highly intriguing idea in the presentation of an art exhibition.

McCarthy, who has an aversion to titling his own paintings, feeling that the viewer is influenced by a title given to a picture by the artist, solved his difficulty by inviting a nine-year old boy and a girl to express their reactions to the paintings by titling them for him.

The resulting picture titles—each is listed under the canvas—are exceedingly refreshing and highly indicative of Edie Heckeroth's and Danny Perlman's observations of the pictures. Edie's are influnced by a feminine sense of poetry while Danny's are more matter-of-fact but directly to the point. In a landscape for instance, Edie has seen "windy trees" while Danny observes "Autumn," or in a charming shore vista, she describes it as "a lovely beach," and Danny notes a "sun rise." A storm-swept beach-head suggests to Edie "an island in the sea," and to Danny "the big cliff."

In one of McCarthy's characteristically glowing winter scenes, Edie discerns an Indian cannon," while Danny is more impressed with "the river bend. The greatest divergency lay, perhaps in the reaction to a wild view of scudding storm clouds and sun rays, which Edie called "shooting trees," and Danny "two rocks."

During Friday afternoon's opening the titling of the pictures developed into a game in which the adult visitors joined. A desolate hill with a deserted house reminded one visitor of Wuthering Heights, to Edie it was a "lonely shack," and to Danny "the ghost house." A sparkling view of the White Cliffs of Dover reminded another visitor of the tiny Devon fishing village of Beer, but to Edie it was a picnic ground, and to Danny "the river outlet."

Obviously, McCarthy's luminous paintings, and excellent conte portraits, are stimulating to the imagination and exceedingly well-

Quartet Features Bassoon Soloist

Woodstock, Aug. 12 — Last Thursday, the Woodstock String Quartet gave the fourth of its series of six concerts in the Town Hall, featuring Bernard H. Garfield, bassoon, as soloist, with Julius Levine, double bass, and Ilse Sass, piano, augmenting the quartet. One very seldom hears the bassoon in a solo capacity; therefore, exploring the possibilities of a comparatively unfamiliar tone color was an interesting experience.

The program opened with Vivaldi's concerto La Notte for bassoon, piano and string quartet in B-flat major, a charming example of an early concerto, written in the late Baroque period. In its performance, Garfield displayed well his virtuosity on the instrument. It is difficult to play the bassoon without creating a rather breathy tone, but his fullness and roundness of tone indicated that Garfield has more than overcome these difficulties.

The next work on the program was a premiere! Hanus Schimmerling, a resident of this village, composed a Suite for String Quartet, dedicated to the Woodstock String Quartet.

Schimmerling was born in Moravia, and studied composition under Semlinsky, Schoenberg's teacher. There is, however, none of the mathematical dissonance of the Schoenbergian school to be found in Schimmerling's music.

Although he has gained considerable fame, both here and abroad, for his choral compositions and arrangements, this is Schimmerling's first work for string quartet. The work itself is pleasant to listen to, although at times there seems to be a lack of integration and musical substance. The last movement, a charming bit of program music, is supposed to represent a rehearsal of the Quartet, with a theme, to which fit the words, Woodstock String Quartet, reiterated often on the cello, while the other three instruments have rather argumentative passages. Finally, a harmony is achieved, in which all the players have decided to sublimate their individual differences.

The quartet next turned to an American Dance, by Burrill Phillips, a work for bassoon and string quartet. Phillips is a contemporary American composer, a graduate of Eastman, and now a member of the faculty there. His American Dance is a not unpleasant, but rather uninteresting work.

Schubert's Quintet for piano, violin, viola cello and double bass, the Trout quintet, is a well-known and loved work, and well constructed in its juxtaposition of the five instruments. It is unusual to find a work in which the double bass assumes a role so close in importance to the other more melodic, string instruments. It is also unusual to find so fine a performer on the instrument as Julius Levine.

In this quintet, we see Schubert's romantic tendencies in the lyricism which characterizes the work, yet his dependence on the classical conception of form is also shown in the construction of the individual movements. In Schubert's works, altogether, form and content are both stressed, but the latter takes precedence over the former. This quintet was played with a coordination and "joie de vivre" which made the performance an exhilarating experience and the climax of the evening.

In next Thursday's concert, the quartet — Sidney Harth, violin, Terese Testa, violin, Irving Manning, viola, Engelbert Roentgen, cello—will be featured alone. The works to be performed include Haydn's string quartet in G Minor, Opus 74, three Madrigals for Violin and Viola, by Martinu, and the Brahms C Minor string quartet, Opus 51, No. 1.

Plans Are Discussed For Planting Trees

Woodstock, Aug. 12—The Woodstock Garden Club met last Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Therese Kessel.

It was announced that plans are underway for the planting of 10 trees—eight maples and two yews—with the funds donated for the purpose by the former Woodstock Civic Organization. The trees will probably be planted around the village green, pending final decisions. The Civic Organization, which disbanded last year, presented a total of $104.13 to the Garden Club for the planting of trees in the village, and it is the aim of the club to beautify the village.

There was a large attendance at the meeting at which tea was served. The next meeting will be held Wednesday, September 3, at the home of Miss Florence Hubbard, on Wittenberg Road.

Pianist Is Guest At Local Concert

Woodstock, August 12—The second Concert Dardenne which took place Saturday afternoon featured the visiting pianist Anton Rovinsky, as well as Victor Dardenne, violinist.

The program included Beethoven' Sonata No. 1 in D Major and Sibelius's Sonatina in E Major, which respectively began and ended the concert. Both sonatas responded beautifully to Dardenne's robust inventiveness of phrasing and Rovinsky's gracious touch. The thorough musicianship of the two players succeeded in blending their individual styles into an ensemble of unusual harmony and balance. This is the first time this beautiful Sibelius sonata has been heard here in many years.

Rovinsky who had shown superb craftmanship in the Beethoven work, completely won his audience with his lambent tone in the ethereal Brahm's Ballade (D Minor, Opus 10), which opened his series of piano solos. Another high light was his own composition, Little Suite, an interesting study in contemporary style. The Prelude of the Suite, entitled Mist and Clouds, was particularly intriguing to this reviewer.

The Dardennes are to be congratulated for another event of such distinction and interest.

Mystery Thriller Will Open Tonight

Woodstock, Aug. 12—A thriller mystery drama, Invitation To a Murder, opens tonight at the Woodstock Playhouse, with an all-Broadway cast. The production, which will continue through Sunday, August 17, is staged by Robert H. Harris, director.

A smash hit of its season, Invitation To a Murder, features Edith Gresham, member of the original Broadway Oklahoma cast and TV actress, who was brought from Manhattan especially for the leading role, originally created by Gale Sondergaard. Playing the role created by Humphrey Bogart is Gordon Mills, applauded as the literary agent in last week's comedy, Yes, My Darling Daughter. They are joined by actors Franklyn Fox, last week's irate father; Pat Sales, last week's "darling daughter;" Robert Baines, who has returned to the Playhouse after delighting audiences in the season's earlier productions; and by the popular Playhouse favorite and Woodstock resident, Jane Lloyd-Jones.

Two additional New York actors have been brought to the Playhouse to complete the large cast of this thriller: Richard Shankland, well-known TV star, and John Sydow, acclaimed last season for his Playhouse successes as the Inspector in An Inspector Calls and as the booming lawyer in Shaw's You Never Can Tell.

Set against the background of a centuries-old estate on the Southern California coast, Invitation to a Murder relates how Lorinda Channing, current head of a great American family, contrives a ghastly plot to trap the would-be heirs to her immense wealth. Miss Gresham, known for her characterizations of power-wielding women, portrays Lorinda Channing.

Margaret McDonough has designed the setting.

Paintings Named In Novel Manner

Woodstock, August 12—Last Friday afternoon, C. J. McCarthy, whose one-man show of paintings and drawings opened at the Town House, introduced a novel and highly intriguing idea in the presentation of an art exhibition.

McCarthy, who has an aversion to titling his own paintings, feeling that the viewer is influenced by a title given to a picture by the artist, solved his difficulty by inviting a nine-year old boy and a girl to express their reactions to the paintings by titling them for him.

The resulting picture titles—each is listed under the canvas—are exceedingly refreshing and highly indicative of Edie Heckeroth's and Danny Perlman's observations of the pictures. Edie's are influnced by a feminine sense of poetry while Danny's are more matter-of-fact but directly to the point. In a landscape for instance, Edie has seen "windy trees" while Danny observes "Autumn," or in a charming shore vista, she describes it as "a lovely beach," and Danny notes a "sun rise." A storm-swept beach-head suggests to Edie "an island in the sea," and to Danny "the big cliff."

In one of McCarthy's characteristically glowing winter scenes, Edie discerns an Indian cannon," while Danny is more impressed with "the river bend. The greatest divergency lay, perhaps in the reaction to a wild view of scudding storm clouds and sun rays, which Edie called "shooting trees," and Danny "two rocks."

During Friday afternoon's opening the titling of the pictures developed into a game in which the adult visitors joined. A desolate hill with a deserted house reminded one visitor of Wuthering Heights, to Edie it was a "lonely shack," and to Danny "the ghost house." A sparkling view of the White Cliffs of Dover reminded another visitor of the tiny Devon fishing village of Beer, but to Edie it was a picnic ground, and to Danny "the river outlet."

Obviously, McCarthy's luminous paintings, and excellent conte portraits, are stimulating to the imagination and exceedingly well-

Trained Personnel Needed, Truman Commission Told

Washington, Aug. 12 (AP)—The president's commission on health needs of the nation was told today that thousands more dentists, nurses and medical assistants are needed to care for the American people.

Summaries of panel discussions held during the last two months by 21 medical, military and lay experts were presented at the opening of a two-day session by the commission.

The panel summaries indicated the exact shortage of trained people, including physicians and surgeons, depends upon how U. S. medical care is "organized."

Proposing a plan for doing this is one purpose of the commission. President Truman appointed its members last December. He has been plugging for a national compulsory health insurance plan. The commission was told to study the facts and present a program for "safeguarding and improving the health of the nation."

Calls It 'Expediency'

The American Medical Association, opposed to what it calls "socialized medicine," has described the appointment of the Truman commission an act of "political expediency."

The resolution adopted by AMA convention delegates last June emphasized that this is a presidential campaign year. It said the AMA should not judge the commission's final report until after it is made next December.

The panel summaries estimated about 3,000 dentists are being turned out each year, but around 3,400 are needed to maintain the proportion of dentists to total population at its present level.

They also estimated thousands of more nurses are needed each year than are trained; and said the American Hospital Association has reported 47,000 job vacancies in such fields as laboratory technicians occupational therapy, X-ray technicians and hospital administration.

It was estimated that less than one-half of Americans seek dental care each year. Members of the dental panel agreed that "adequate" dental care is not available to all citizens.

Variations in . . .

American Geographical Society, and also chairman of the International "Medical Geography" Commission, said the commission's first aim is to "map" the distribution of all diseases throughout the world.

Sees Need to Know

Declaring there is a need to know "who has what and where," he said that once such information is pinned down on a world-wide basis, it may be possible to determine why one person becomes afflicted and another does not.

He asserted that "geographical factors" may be paramount in the distribution of disease, adding that the commission's second aim is to study such possible relationships.

Geographical factors, he explained, include physical ones, such as rainfall, temperature, barometric pressure, sails and wind direction; human or social factors such as population density, standard of living, food supply, religious customs and superstitions, and drug addictions; and biological factors such as dominant blood groups, animal and vegetable life in the environment.

Naguib Agree . . .

Chief censor Anwar Habib, after conferring with the premier and interior ministry officials, said the question of censorship was to be studied further today, and that meanwhile there would be no censorship either on incoming or outgoing dispatches.

Habib had pointed out that Egypt and Israel still were technically at war—the war in Palestine which was declared in 1948. The fighting was ended by an armistice. Actually, he said, censorship had been imposed by decree and would have to be abolished by decree, but while the matter was under discussion censorship would not be invoked.

A spokesman for the premier said Egypt may have elections in February, "if not before," but that a definite date has not been set. Naguib has called for stepped up cleansing of political corruption so that the election could be held by February.

Nude Man Frightens . Anglo Nudist Colony

Finchampsted, England, Aug. 12 (AP)—Members of the heritage nudist colony have offered a reward for the capture of a naked man. He frightens them.

Club officials reported today the man has popped up, stark naked, from behind bushes several times recently when members —usunally women or children—have been strolling quietly in the colony's secluded grounds.

Despite their complete sartorial similarity, members insist the tall, sun-tanned man definitely is not one of the colony. His visits have frightened the nudists so much women will not go out alone at night.

Many monkeys apparently cannot swim, but others take readily to water.
